ORDER COMES OUT OF CHAOS

GRIEF'S POIGNANCY IS LESSENED

GALVESTON WILL BE REBUILT

New Arrivals Find Their Sorrows Lessened by Greater Griefs of Those Around Them.

ADMITTANCE BY PASS ONLY

From a Post-Dispatch Staff Correspondent.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 14.—Galveston is slowly bringing a semblance of order out of chaos. By this it is not meant that the city is being restored to anything like its former appearance. To do that will require ten years of hard work and commercial enterprise.

But, in the sense that the people are beginning to think and act normally and to feel the ordinary desire and experience the usual sensations of human beings, it may be said that chaos is being conquered.

Still there are mourners who go about the streets refusing to be comforted, but for the most part these are persons who have just arrived and found that members of their families perished. After they have mingled with old friends, nearly all of whom have lost one or more relatives, it seems to the observer that their grief grows less poignant. They exemplify the homely old adage that misery loves company and is cheered thereby and it is well that such is the case. Otherwise these crushed hearts must break under the load of grief.

Since the working gangs have cut passages through the principal streets, buried or otherwise disposed of all visible corpses, they have reduced the stench by the abundant application of disinfectants and in other ways lessened the too insistent and visible horrors of the situation.

Admitted Only On a Pass.

The military commander, Gen. Scurry, has relaxed to a considerable degree the rigid rules of admission to the city which prevailed for the past three days. No one, however, is admitted without a pass from Mayor Brashear of Houston.

Applicants must prove at Houston that they had relatives in Galveston Saturday night before they are allowed to board the train. At Texas City, where the steamer Lawrence lands, they must undergo another examination by the military guard on the pier. No persons who come on mere business are permitted to enter, for there is no such thing as business in Galveston.

Refugees Given Aid in Houston.

The urgent necessity of cleaning the streets and houses and saving the lives of the survivors is the paramount issue by common consent as well as by martial law. No one is permitted to leave the city without a pass, signed by Adjutant McCaleb. Today the departures of refugees have increased. Probably 2000 persons, mostly women and children, have gone to Houston, where the destitute are provided with food, shelter and clothing as soon as they arrive.

Houston is the great relief depot. Mrs. Rosine Ryan, who represented the United States in an official capacity at the Paris Exposition, is chairman of the committee to attend to the wants of women and children. Supplies donated by sympathizers are reaching Houston daily, and there is no real suffering after that city is entered by the hopeless and forlorn refugee. Those who have money buy their own transportation and go beyond Houston to other destinations. The destitute ones are supplied with free transportation to any place in the United States.

It is evident that a good many of the refugees do not intend to return to Galveston. Why should they? Their homes are obliterated, the very pillars of their houses are torn up and cast away, they cannot even identify the lots on which their dwellings stood. It is a fact, strange as it may appear, that in the eastern and southern portions of the city along a strip extending four blocks from the beach and two miles in length, it is impossible for most of the former residents to find the streets where they lived. This strip is almost clear of wreckage and is like a barren field.

All Landmarks Wiped Out.

Here and there is a stake or a plank curb, a slight depression clear of grass, showing where a house stood, but for the rest it is utter annihilation of human evidences, so that not one person in a hundred can identify the street on which he lived. This sudden and complete change in the appearance of the city has caused many to lose their home-love for the place.

"This is no longer Galveston," they say. "Galveston is gone," and then they go, vowing never to return.

Hundreds of families have gone to Houston without the slightest idea as to their destination, after they shall have received supplies and had time to consider the future. To get out of Galveston is their sole aim, and for the rest, they are content to let the world wag until they take a look around.

The fact that people are leaving Galveston with no intention to return and live here, serves better than columns of adjectives to describe the terrible nature of the storm and its results. One man said this morning that he had lived here eighteen years, but he was going away.

"I'll never risk another night like Saturday," he said. "I know there are storms elsewhere, but I'll take my chances outside. Saturday I was in a house where twenty-five women and children were shrieking and praying from dark to day. There's hell for you."

Sturdy Determination to Rebuild.

On the other hand there is a sturdy determination upon the part of many to remain in Galveston and help to rebuild the city. These men are working with might and main to remove the debris. Today assistance came from Houston, the street commissioner and 150 men of his force having arrived to help in clearing the wreckage from the streets.

A thousand men working constantly for a month could scarcely make an appreciable diminution in the litter along the east and south beaches. Consider that it requires men for months to erect an ordinary house; with 4000 houses, their contents, fences, sidewalks, paving blocks and nameless other refuse to clear away, it will be months if not years before the last debris is removed.

At present the men are attacking the huge windrows of wreckage that lodge against the houses left standing, a number of blocks from the beach. This is in order to remove the bodies that lie under the ruins. Were it not for the fact that timbers are piled against houses that can be saved, the debris would be cleared away by burning it.

Fear of Fire Constant Menace.

The fear of fire is a constant menace to Galveston. With the waterworks ruined, a fire would complete the destruction of the town. This is one reason why the place is under martial law and persons are not permitted to go abroad at night. Assisting the soldiers are a large number of deputy sheriffs and extra policemen.

It reminds a St. Louisan of the days of the posse comitatus. But otherwise St. Louis even during street car riots or after her cyclone is not to be compared with Galveston in her stricken state. There are persons here who went through the Johnstown flood and the St. Louis tornado. They say that those disasters were mild in comparison to this.

Benevolent Orders Render Aid.

The secret orders are doing good work in the way of relief, Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Modern Woodmen and others are represented by delegations which have been sent in to open headquarters and render aid to impoverished members and their families. Physicians, Sisters of Charity and of Mercy, trained nurses and hospital attendants arrive daily.

Telegraph Wires Restored to Use.

Today both the telegraph companies succeeded in restoring communication by placing operators at the end of the cables running from the main land near the island end of the demolished wagon bridge, three miles from the business section. By 4 o'clock the Postal had a wire in the main office.

Railroad officials promise that within twenty days a bridge will be built to the island, using the old piling, much of which remains, but the people are not sanguine on this score.

As an indication of the utter wreck of the residence districts, it is observed that the city directory has practically gone out of use. One cannot find one citizen in fifty by looking up his old address.

No Mails and No Newspapers.

The daily scenes at the postoffice furnished another illustration, no mails being delievred. People from all over town gather at the carriers' windows, sometimes the lines are half a block long. Excepting the Houston Post and one issue of another paper, no newspaper has come into Galveston since the disaster. Until Wednesday the people had read no outside news whatever.

Town Resembles Huge Wash Day.

In the business section of the town presents a remarkable aspect. The merchants have stretched ropes along the supports of the wooden awnings, which yet remain, and upon these they have strung damaged shirts, underwear, socks and other goods, making it resemble a wash day on a huge scale, though the clothing on the lines is extremely dirty. In front of several stores there are three or four such clotheslines, one above the other. The grocers have dumped big bins of potatoes, and other vegetables into the street to be carted away. Feed store men are saving corn and oats by spreading them on the ground, with gunnysacks underneath to dry in the sun.

From the shattered windows of the residences standing one may see all sorts of wearing apparel, carpets, rugs, table linen and matting hung out to dry. Many families are living in houses keeled over like the leaning tower of Pisa.

In the west end of town, a big frame house, two stories high, sets squarely across a street car track. The remnant of the family lives in it. The Tremont and other hotels still quarter many of the homeless. It is almost impossible for a stranger to obtain a room or even a bed.

TOUCHING SCENES OVER MANY FUNERAL PYRES.

From a Post-Dispatch Staff Correspondent.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—Many tragic scenes have been witnessed at the pyres upon which the bodies of the dead have been burned.

Immense crowds have gathered to witness these ghastly ceremonies. As a rule they have been effectively held back by military police, but now and then a man or woman would break past the line and dash toward the blazing pile in the frenzied hope of reclaiming from the flames the body of some loved one for whom all search had been in vain.

There have been several suicides of those who have cast themselves in maniacal despair upon these funeral pyres and there would have been many more had the rigor of the military cordon been more generally relaxed.

The sanitary experts are pushing the work of burning the dead. No other disposal is considered. It is believed that three-fourths of the dead have been buried, burned or cast into the sea.

Disinfectants are used as never before in the world. The smell of the charnel house has been driven away and the whole city is filled with fumes of carbolic acid and lime in solution.

It is estimated that 300 bodies were cremated yesteday. Many of the negroes left the task of cremation, overcome by fright and nausea. White volunteers took their places and the work went on. The men bandaged their noses and mouths in cotton cloths saturated with disinfectants and were relieved by other volunteers every hour.

Fires could not be started everywhere that bodies were found. The usual plan was to collect all bodies within two blocks in one spot and then build the funeral pyre.

On the bodies of many women was valuable jewelry, but the men made no attempt to remove it and it was burned with the bodies.

EAST ST. LOUIS CHEERS BRYAN

The Presidential Candidate Speaks to Thousands.

ARRIVAL AT RELAY STATION.

ENTHUSIASTIC DEMONSTRATIONS MARK DRIVE THROUGH CITY.

After Luncheon at the National Hotel and an Informal Reception, the Nebraskan Speaks on Trusts at the City Hall.

East St. Louis received William J. Bryan Saturday afternoon with enthusiastic demonstrations. The Democratic presidential candidate arrived on a special car attached to the Vandalia train, which pulled into Relay Depot at 12:38 o'clock.

A committee of East St. Louisans, composed of James H. Donahue, C. D. Derleth, Louis Eldich, J. N. Sullivan, E. C. Singer, Thomas Healy, Jerry J. Kain and Robert Monroe, had gone to Greenville to meet Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan was smiling broadly as he stepped from the train. He is much stouter than when he last visited East St. Louis, and looked the picture of rugged health. He was dressed plainly in a blue serge coat and gray striped trousers.

Mr. Bryan made his way through the crowd, shaking hands right and left.

Holton's Band was at the station and played "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean," as the train pulled in.

After greetings at the station, Mr. Bryan was escorted to a carriage and was driven, accompanied by the reception committee, to the National Hotel. Part of the distance was traversed in a carriage and the balance in a street car.

After lunch hundreds crowded into the hotel to see and meet Mr. Bryan during the few minutes before he started for the City Hall. He spoke from the platform at the north front of the City Hall.

Mr. Bryan's East St. Louis speech, following his general plan for this tour, deals chiefly with the trust question.

At the conclusion of his speech at East St. Louis, Mr. Bryan will be taken in cvharge of by the reception committee from St. Louis, composed of 50 traveling men, under the leadership of James W. Jump, chairman of the national Democratic committee of commercial travelers.

This committee will escort the distinguished visitor to the St. Nicholas Hotel via the Eads bridge. A private reception will be held at the hotel.

The route of Mr. Bryan's carriage from the bridge approach at Third and Washington avenue will be west on Washington to Twelfth street, south to Olive street, east to Ninth street, north to Locust street and east to the hotel.

Mr. Bryan will remain in his apartments after the brief reception until the time for his visit to the Coliseum.

At the Coliseum Mr. Bryan will be introduced by James R. Boddie of Arkansas, an old commercial traveler. James W. Jump, chairman of the national executive committee of the Democratic League of Commercial Travelers, will preside. He will introduce John A. Lee of St. Louis, candidate for lieutenant-governor, who, in turn, will present Webster Davis.

An effort has been made to have Mr. Bryan speak at the celebration of the Knights and Ladies of Honor at Lemp's Park. It was said at the St. Nicholas Hotel headquarters Saturday morning that Mr. Bryan would not be able to accept the invitation.

DANGER FROM LEAVING PEKIN.

Chinese Elsewhere Are Apt to Construe It as Defeat of the Allies.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15.—News of the contemplated withdrawal of the allies from Pekin has caused a great mistake, which is likely to eventuate in disturbances in other parts of China, where the people are certain to attribute the evacuation to a defeat of the European forces. Even here the Chinese, as a whole, don't believe that the allies ever reached Pekin. They think the story a fabrication concocted for the purpose of imposing upon the officials.

Competent observers believe that a lesson must be taught to China now in order to prevent serious outbreaks in the future.

Reid Northrup, president of the American Refrigerator Transit Co., in inclosing a check for $100 for the company and $25 for himself, adds: "We will furnish our cold storage station free for the receipt of any perishable goods which it is desired to ship and will also furnish refrigerator cars, ice and transport them free of expense when so requested by the committee."

Gov. Sayers Saturday morning telegraphed the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch the following:

"Upon the government vessel, or any other vessels that leave for Galveston within the next two days, please have shipped without fail five hundred barrels of copperas and one hundred barrels of carbolic acid. Badly needed at Galveston for sanitary purposes."

THEIR DREAM OF WEALTH ENDED

George Mesinger and Wife Will Leave St. Louis.

ALMOST SEPARATED HERE.

MESINGER WOULD NOT TOUCH HIS SAVINGS.

Work Failed Him, and Spurred by Hunger, His Wife Sought to Secure a Divorce From Him.

Because she tired trying to support herself and her children on 10 cents a day, Mrs. Katie Mesinger of 3127 South Broadway filed a suit for divorce from her husband, George Mesinger.

Thursday morning she repented of her action and announced that she would withdraw the suit and continue her struggle for existence.

For a week the Mesinger family's diet consisted mainly of bread. Mrs. Mesinger says they would have gotten along fairly well but for the fact that the price of foodstuffs rose so rapidly that her allowance of 10 cents purchased less of the necessities of life on each succeeding day.

Friday, weak and hungry and on the verge of collapse, Mrs. Mesinger went to the office of a lawyer. She says she sought only relief from the conditions under which she was forced to live and did not realize what she was doing when she signed the petition for divorce. Prior to the woman's visit to the lawyer her husband had packed up his effects and left the house. Friday night he returned and a reconciliation was effected.

Here is Mrs. Mesinger's account of her experience as given to the Post-Dispatch:

"We had always been accustomed to country life. My husband owned a good farm near St. Genevieve, Mo., and we were prosperous. He heard a great deal about the good jobs that were to be found in the city, and made up his mind to come to St. Louis. I tried to get him to stay on the farm, but his mind was made up. A month ago we sold the farm and came here. My husband put about $700 in the bank, and kept out a small amount to pay current expenses until he should find a position. That wasn't as easy as he thought it would be. His ready money dwindled rapidly. A week ago he told me I would have to get along on 10 cents a day. When he went out in the morning he left me a loaf of bread and a dime. He would remain away all day. With the money which he left me I had to provide food for myself and my two children, a boy 12 years old and a girl 14 years old.

"I gave the children most of what we got. During the entire week we never tasted meat or vegetables. One day I would buy a little coffee, the next a little butter and the next some preserves. Bread and coffee, bread and butter and bread and preserves were our meals.

"My husband did not want to draw on the money we had in bank. When he left Friday morning I went to see a lawyer. I signed some sort of a paper. I do not want to leave my husband. I will have the suit withdrawn at once. My husband and I have talked it all over, and we have decided to go back to the country. Our dream of wealth in the city is over."

Mrs. Mesinger's statement that she gave most of the food to the children is borne out by their appearance. They are both well nourished and stout, while the litle mother is weak and pale.

NOT ONE OF THE DEAD BURIED IN COFFINS

Incidents Which Mark the Terrible Mental Strain Under Which Survivors Suffer.

From a Post-Dispatch Staff Correspondent.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—Most useless of all things in Galveston is a coffin. None of the dead have been buried in caskets. Sunday morning, when it was supposed that only a few hundred had perished, the natural intention was to inter the dead in the cemeteries and the first courier sent to the main land was instructed to order a large number of coffins. Many were sent down on the first trains that reached Texas City and dumped off on the flats, where they remained.

Such of the dead as have interment were buried without coffins. Shallow graves were scooped near where they were found and the corpses, most of them stark naked, were laid to rest without ceremony. These dead got the burial of the battlefield, uncoffined and unknown.

Mental Agony of Survivors.

The survivors are dazed.

Those who escaped physical hurt are prostrated by mental agony. They go about the streets staring vacantly into void space, stumbling over the wreckage of their homes, heeding nothing. Some of these who have lost their loved ones babble and chatter like persons demented.

With one breath they laugh at empty jokes and with the next they rave as their thoughts return to the Saturday night of dread and desolation and pictures of their loved ones lying in ghastly death amid debris arise before them.

But for the most part the people of Galveston are silent in their sorrow. Men choke up and shed tears when they talk of their lost, but there is such a wide community of sorrow that the majority seem to accept it as a matter of course and realize that sobs and tears are of no avail.

When friend meets friend upon the streets the question is: "Are you all safe?" The usual reply is like this: "John is gone." Sometimes the answer is: "I am the only one left."

These stricken people never say that their folks are dead, drowned or lost. Those Words are not used. They are merely—"gone" and that little word has come to have a more terrible meaning in Galveston than any other in the vocabulary.

Pathos of the Word "Gone."

"My folks are all gone," says the member of the family who was absent during the storm and has returned to learn of the others.

It is unspeakably pathetic to hear this fatal word, "Gone, gone," from the lips of a man whose eyes are dry and who gazes out over the fallen city with a hopeless stare.

This morning a well-dressed man of about 50 years stood on the sidewalk in front of the Tremont weeping convulsively. Sobs shook his frame and tears coursed down his cheeks.

The Post-Dispatch correspondent inquired how many of his folks were gone and if he could be of assistance. "I have lost nobody," he replied. I had no relatives here. I am just in, but that poor devil standing yonder says that his wife and six children, his mother, two sisters and a brother are all gone. I never saw him before, but, my God, this is terrible!"

The man who had lost all was not shedding a tear. His was a sorrow too deep for tears.

Such scenes as these are not infrequent. Men who have lived here all their lives and have returned to look after their families are compelled to ask others to direct them to the places where they resided.

Impossible to Identify Streets.

Such is the utter wreck and ruin for the residence district that it is sometimes impossible for residents to identify streets. They speak of the streets in the past tense. "This was Thirty-second street, I think," remarks a man who owned a home on Thirty-second street. Some have found their houses several blocks distant from where they originally stood. The majority have found only vacant lots, or their homesites covered with flotsam of other houses, beneath which still lie the corpses of the dead. Such is the stupendous change since Saturday night that some of the citizens are unable to identify the lots upon which their homes stood, except by stepping off the distance from the street corner.

Last Saturday the city of Galveston had good houses and 37,000 people by the census of 1890. Today there are scarcely more than 4000 houses standing and not one of these escaped damage. Today the population of Galveston, it is asserted by reliable citizens, will not exceed 20,000. Mayor Jones admits that his estimate of 5000 dead is conservative. Men are plentiful who make estimates of from 7000 to 10,000, based upon the fact that a residence area in which more than 20,000 people lived is entirely swept away and it was impossible for many persons to survive the hellish fury of the wind and wave and crashing timbers.

The number of the injured is impossible to ascertain. It is not believed that the number of injured is in excess of those dead, for many of the injured who otherwise would have escaped, were drowned when rendered unable to combat the tidal wave lashed to demoniac fury by the hurricane.

It is estimated that hardly more than one-half the population escaped unhurt. Even a new census, if taken immediately, would not serve to show the total number of the dead, for several thousand have left the city and more are going out on every boat. "We're going away," they say. "We don't know where to go, but we can't stay here. Galveston is gone. This is no place for us to live. It is too dreadful to think of staying in such a place. The stench is so horrible we are afraid of cholera or some other pestilence."

Looking Longingly Across the Bay.

It was in part the peril of pestilence which caused Gen. Scurry, commander under martial law, to forbid persons entering the city Wednesday. Hundreds who lived here and had heard nothing as to the fate of their relatives, were shut out. All day they stood on the shore of the mainland at Texas City, gazing across the seven miles of salt water that separated them from the ragged ruins of the east end of Galveston, visible like a mirage of an ancient city in a desert. They pleaded in vain to be permitted to board the boats, but a squad of soldiers with drawn bayonets and sabers kept them back.

Syndicates were made up among the anxious men, grown desperate, and secret plots were formed to buy sloops down the beach or build rafts out of wreckage and come into the city at night, risking the chance of being shot by the soldiers, who guarded every landing. Finally some were admitted, but others were refused.

Some of those who were denied entrance picked up rowboats that had been cast up on the beach and, using planks for oars, they rowed in the dead of night to the coast of Galveston Island west of the city. The military guard was weak there, and the men walked into the city. As so many refugees have gone out, Gen. Scurry has decided to admit those who can show proof that they have or had relatives here and that they carry food.

Like a Reduced Garrison Town.

Galveston is like a city reduced by bombardment, but still occupied by the garrison and the surviving citizens. Everywhere the water canteen is seen, carried alike by soldiers and civilians. The soldiers guarding the landing places eat their rations on tables improvised from wreckage, breathing the unspeakable stench from hundreds of dead bodies, man and beast and fowl.

In the landing slips of the boats on the west side of the city, bodies are still floating. At one point the skeletons of five corpses from which the flesh had been burned before they were thrown into the water, float about.

SICK AND DEAD CARED FOR GALVESTON HAS NEW HOPES

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—A more hopeful feeling is observable everywhere, and the situation is brightening rapidly.

State Health Officer Dr. Blunt believes that there is no danger of an epidemic from the conditions resulting from the storm. The city board of health held a meeting and adopted a resolution voicing the same views.

Emergency hospitals have been established in every ward for the treatment of the sick and wounded. The Ursuline Convent has been converted into a great general hospital for the reception and care of the more serious patients with a full corps of physicians and trained nurses. All public and private hospitals are filled to their capacity with sufferers. Medical supplies are still much needed.

Banks and some other branches of business have resumed. Others are actively preparing to resume. Preparations for rebuilding have been going on in the business part of the city. The railways and the wharf front are being rapidly cleaned of debris.

The telegraph and telephone companies are rushing things. The Western Union has five wires strung to their downtown office. The Postal Telegraph Co. will have some wires up and the full telegraphic service is expected to be re-established by the close of the week.

The interment and cremation of human bodies and carcasses of animals is being vigorously prosecuted. It is conservatively estimated now that the loss of human life will exceed 6000, with half that number wounded.

Only about six houses remain between South Galveston and the city limits.

Of probably 1000 living down on the island, at least one-third were lost. There are 200 bodies on the beach between the Mott Place and the city limits. Eighteen people in this neighborhood got together and began burying the dead. They are out of provisions.

Bishop Gailagher of the Catholic diocese states that no member of the clergy or not one of the sisters in the City of Galveston was lost. The only losses of sisters were the ten at the Orphanage, down the island, which has heretofore been reported.

Daily papers and illustrated papers have been wild for photographs of the Galveston disaster. The town is under military law and the people are not in condition to brook photographers. Three photographers who ventured out had their instruments smashed and themselves pressed into service burying dead bodies

CORNERED AGAIN

IN THIS DARK TOWN.
In the gloaming, oh, my darling,
When the moon has gone to sleep,
And there is no light, my darling,
Only darkness, black and deep,
If they pinch me for a burglar
As I slowly creep along,
Will you pass me up, my darling,
And, by doubting, do me wrong?
—ZEKE N. HEINE.

Was it George Washington who said "A rolling stone gathers no fromage de brie," or was that William Shakespere?

But perhaps the point is immaterial. The fact remains that the rolling stone DOES gather no fromage de brie, and that the man who settles down and sticks to one job is more certain of success than any other.

For example: There is a carpenter who commenced married life on $12 a week. He stuck to his business like a leech, and the result is that he has not only raised a family of eight children, but has given them each a good education; furthermore, he has paid for a home which is worth $2500, and has saved money besides. But this is not all he has done. You will find the whole story in to-morrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Just think how many strange and interesting things there are happening in this world every day!

You can't count them, "so fast upon each other's heels they follow."

It is the business of a newspaper to find out and chronicle these events, and in this line the Sunday Post-Dispatch has proved itself to be a world-beater.

What is more, many of these strange things happen right here in St. Louis—some of them in sight of your own door. Yet nobody seems to find them out except the Sunday Post-Dispatch. That is what comes of a quick eye and a nose for news. Several of these striking occurrences will be recorded and illustrated by tomorrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Above all things be advised not to forget the halftones. They are worthy of all consideration, for they are beautiful and artistic to the last degree. Among the most prominent of these features you will find the following:

BEAUTIFUL ST. LOUIS WOMEN.

GUAMITES ARE AMERICANS.

That Is the Opinion of District Court of Hawaii.

HONOLULU, Sept. 8, via San Francisco, Sept. 15.—The question of whether citizens of Guam are Americans was raised in the United States district court here today. Judge Estee expressed the opinion that the native-born people of Guam are Americans by virtue of the annexation of their country by the United States. The question arose in connection with the application for naturalization papers of Reynold Reyes, a native of Guam and former subject of Spain. He took out papers, though the court said that it was probably unnecessary. There are several other Guam men here and some Filipinos whose standing is involved in the same doubts as that of Reyes.

FRENCH MADE A GOOD CATCH

Lord Roberts Reports the Capture of Forty Locomotives and Many Stores.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Lord Roberts reports to the War Office under date of Machadodorp, Sept. 14, as follows:

French occupied Barberton yesterday with the cavalry which he took across the mountains. He met slight opposition, the enemy being completely surprised. Twenty-three officers and 59 men who were prisoners, were released, and 43 locomotives and other rolling stock were captured.

The former will relieve uss of great difficulty, as we had to put up with a few rickety engines.

French reports that he has sufficient supplies for three weeks for his force and for a week for his horses. One hundred Boers with many Mauser rifles and a quantity of ammunition were captured. There are large quantities of cattle and sheep in the country which is good news.

French intercepted large convoys, showing that Barberton was used as a depot of supplies for the Boers in the south and southeast. The bulk of French's force is still 35 miles behind the cavalry owing to the difficulty getting the wagons over the pass leading to Barberton.

Unconscious Truth.

"Yes," innocently said she, "I think it has."

And then she wondered why they all tittered.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES, STRANGE INCIDENTS

Some of the Freaks Born of the Fury of the Great Storm at Galveston.

From a Post-Dispatch Staff Correspondent.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—Among the queer incidents of the great disaster are these:

Table a Child's Haven.

The Stubbs family lived in the west end. The house collapsed. Stubbs and his wife and two children floated away on the roof. The roof broke up and Mrs. Stubbs, with one of the children, was parted from her husband. The other child, 5 years old, fell off the roof and it was supposed was drowned. When the flood subsided, husband, wife and one child were reunited. Next day a soldier brought in the 5-year-old. The child had clung to a table until rescued.

Boy Sails 20 Miles on Trunk.

John Rutter, aged 12, was picked up beside a big trunk at Hitchcock, 20 miles from Galveston. The family consisted of parents and six children. The house collapsed and all were lost except the boy. "I came up beside the trunk," said he, "and caught hold of a handle. Then I got on top and floated all night. Sometimes the trunk would lurch and I would be thrown into the water, but I hung on."

Big Families Wiped Out.

The Bullacher and Labett families were two of the largest in Galveston. There were five living generations of the Labetts, 48 persons; only two are now living. Twenty of the Bullachers were lost.

Across the Bay on a House.

The residence of Branch Masterson, near Wholman's Lake, was carried clear across Galveston Bay almost intact. Masterson and two children clung to the roof and landed near Texas City. Mrs. Masterson slipped off and was lost. Masterson has dragged his house up on the beach and is living in it.

Refuge Under Big Gun.

Capt. W. C. Rafferty, Battery O, First Artillery, abandoned his home and taking his family, fled to shelter beneath the big ten-inch gun carriage at Fort Crockett. The water boomed in a deluge over the gun, but it kept on its foundation and the captain and his family were saved.

Much Whisky Drunk.

Whisky saved hundreds of lives in Galveston Sunday. There was nothing to drink but the liquor, and it was consumed by the barrel. It was distributed to the sufferers and the many who had never tasted it before "for once it was a good thing."

Topography Changed.

The topography of Galveston has been changed by the storm. What was formerly high ground is now low ground, points jutting out into the water have been obliterated and new inland curves formed.

Babies Perched in Trees.

Early on Sunday morning Capt. Evans saw two little girls lodged in the branches of a blown down tree near his house. They were sitting on a limb, well braced against the branches. One was 3, the other 5 years old. Capt. Evans got them down out of the tree.

"Whose little girls are you?" asked the captain.

"I'm Grace," said Miss Five-Year-Old, "and that's my sister Mamie."

"Mamie what?"

"Mamie Roberts."

"Where do you live?"

"Bolivar Point."

"Bolivar Point!" exclaimed the captain. Miss Five-Year-Old nodded her head energetically. The captain hooked the children over. Neither of them had even a scratch. The children went to bed in their home at Bolivar Point on Saturday night at 7 o'clock. Bolivar Point is five miles across the bay from Galveston.

Rescued 100 Miles at Sea.

James Kelder, a stevedore, was riding the roof of a house nearly 100 miles out in the open sea, when a steamship rescued him. Many others are undoubtedly drifting around the gulf, if they have not already famished. Kelder was almost dead from exposure and hunger.

Dredge 15 Miles Inland.

The big government dredge is resting on the prairie 15 miles inland. It will have to remain there unless it can be taken apart.

Ship to Be a Hotel.

A big tramp steamship rests three miles inland on a knoll of ground near the railroad track. "I have not yet decided just what we will do with the vessel," said the captain of the steamer, but I think we must either convert her into a hotel or make a railroad depot of her."

QUESTION OF COAL FAMINE

Depends on the Action of the Schuylkill Miners.

WILL THEY JOIN THE STRIKE?

60 PER CENT WILL QUIT IN HAZLETON DISTRICT.

Coal on Hand Sufficient for Some Time, but the Price Is Advancing—Further Increase Is Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Now that the coal market is face to face with a strike in the upper anthracite region, the answer to the question as to whether the miners in the Schuylkill district will strike sympathetically is anxiously awaited. Should the trouble not extend to the Schuylkill mines no grave coal famine is to be feared, as the collieries there could fully meet the normal demand.

Speaking of the stocks of coal on hand in the Reading companies' distributing depots, Vice-President Henkerson said there are 100,000 tons at Port Richmond. The very heaviest shipments from that port have never exceeded that amount in a single month.

While there was no change in circular prices for coal at wholesale at the mines yesterday, the indications were strong that an increase is to be expected in the next few days. While orders for delivery in the next few days were taken at the regular prices in this city, some dealers took advantage of the brisk demand and obtained as high as 50 cents a ton advance on coal for immediate delivery. At the Reading office it was stated that they are accepting orders at the circular price, and that no advance has as yet been asked.

A special from Hazleton says: "Judging from the best information obtainable it is probable that about 60 per cent of the 141,000 miners employed in the anthracite coal fields will lay down their tools tonight. Possibly the United Mine Workers may develop greater strength than this, but there are conservative judges who predict that the strike will not attain to such formidable figures.

"Should the number of defections fall under 50 per cent the men will undoubtedly be disheartened. If 60 per cent go on strike there is a fighting chance for both miners and operators, with the latter holding an advantageous position. If the workers display a strength approximating 80 per cent they will have reason to be jubilant and may secure a speedy victory.

"But the indications would seem to point to a failure to get out expected numbers, especially in this district, and to collisions between the union and non-union elements as a consequence."

WILL NOT BE GENERAL.

Indications That Many Will Not Strike Monday.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 15.—Some of the collieries in this region were running shorthanded today. President Mitcheli is expected here tonight and as soon as he arrives he will take personal charge of the strike. He will be accompanied by a portion of his office staff.

The men employed at the Colerain and Beaver collieries of the A. S. Van Wyckle Co. will hold a meeting tonight to decide whether to strike. The men were warned this week by I. Pardee, executor of the estate controlling the mines, that if they were so disposed they could go out on Monday morning, but that the collieries would be abandoned as soon as the strike was settled. What effect this will have remains to be seen. As some are inclined to strike and others not a spirited meeting is anticipated.

Detectives are said to be arriving on every train, and fully 250 are reported in various mines in this neighborhood. An agent for a barbed wire company stated today that he had sold thousands of pounds of wire to the operators. This indicates that the mines will be fenced in and barriers erected around the breaker houses, beyond which no intruder would dare venture.

The decision of the men employed by G. B. Markle & Co. not to strike until the expiration of the 10 days which the company has been allowed for making answer to their demands which they submitted last night, means that the Jeddo and Oakdale collieries, employing about 1500 hands, will be operated Monday morning, despite the strike order. The Obervale colliery of the same company will probably be closed down because the mine workers' union is strong in that town, and only a few miners from that place were present at last night's meeting. It appears from this that the strike cannot be made general throughout the Hazleton district.

OPERATOR BELITTLES STRIKE.

Says Men Cannot Hope for Success and Do Not Want to Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Calvin Pardee, who has been a coal operator for 33 years and is at the head of the Lattimer & Harwood collieries in the Lehigh region of Luzerne County, expresses the opinion in an interview that the demands made by the United Mine Workers are absurd and that a sufficient number of collieries can be kept running to break the force of the strike, no matter how long it lasts, while the miners will gain absolutely nothing. He said:

"There is no controversy between my men and myself," said Mr. Pardee. "As far as I know, few if any of them—possibly not more than 50—belong to this association, and there are 1000 men in the two collieries. I think there is very little organization through either the Lehigh or Schuylkill district. The men are generally satisfied.

"It is not the anthracite men who want the strike, except to a limited extent. The leaders must naturally do something to maintain their positions.

"As to the union supporting the strikers, I think that it is a false hope, and that is the sad part of it. I have gone through a great many strikes, one six months long, and the help they have gotten from their unions has rarely been anything. It simply means, on the part of the men, defeat; it means suffering for their families. They don't stand the slightest chance of success, no matter how long they hold out."

STRIKE AFFECTS FOREIGNERS.

Anxious Inquiries Are Now Coming From Number of European Cities.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 15.—Should the anthracite coal miners' strike be of prolonged duration it is possible that foreign countries will feel its effects as seriously as they will be felt here if not to a greater degree.

The National Association of Manufacturers is almost daily receiving inquiries from abroad which indicate how urgent is the demand in Europe for American coal. The letters are from coal merchants who want this country's fuel to supply their regular trade, and from business men who see in the scarcity of coal on the continent, an opportunity to engage in a profitable business. The National Association of Manufacturers sends all communications of the kind to mine operators and shippers, bringing buyer and seller promptly together.

Within the past few days inquiries have been received from Glasgow, Dusseldorf, Paris, Berlin and Zurich regarding the prices and facilities for furnishing American coal. S. W. Hansuer, formerly a Philadelphia manufacturer and at present vice-consul general of the United States at Frankfort, Germany, writes as follows to the National Association of Manufacturers.

"The coal famine in Germany continues and is much worse than before; the coal trust has raised its prices on new contracts for coal, coal briquettes (compressed blocks) and coke. The price for coke now is 2½ marks per metric hundred weight (110 pounds English) against 1.40 marks 12 months ago; and as the syndicate can not fill more than about 60 per cent of the orders German wholesale dealers in coke and industrial works using it will have to procure the balance from foreign sources, although the price may be much higher."

ADVISED TO BE ORDERLY.

Executive Board of District No. 9 Issues Circular Advising Moderation.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 15.—At a meeting of the executive board of district No. 9 at this place last night a proclamation was issued to the miners of Dauphin County, together with others, advising them to remain at home next Monday, obey the law, avoid the use of intoxicating liquors and not to become involved in quarrels of any description. The clergy, business men and public at large are asked to aid in the fight against the operators. The men were advised to be very careful when soliciting miners to refrain from work and also advised that no one shall be coerced.

TAKING THEIR TOOLS OUT.

In the Wyoming Valley All Are Ready to Strike.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 15.—A less number of miners were at work in the Wyoming valley today than yesterday, but the coal companies say the output will not be much less than it was on Friday. Several employes of the Pennsylvania Coal Co. at Pittston failed to report for work today. Some driver boys in the employ of the same company created a little excitement by riding through the town and the surrounding villages and proclaiming the strike.

The Exeter Colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co., which was idle yesterday, was closed today. No attempt was made to resume. At noon some of the miners removed their tools from the mines. By tonight nearly all the miners will have their tools out. It seems apparent there will be a general suspension in the Wyoming valley on Monday.

MEN REFUSE AN OFFER.

Will Settle With Republic Iron Company Only Through Officers.

MUNCIE, Ind., Sept. 15.—George M. Bard, formerly president of the Indiana Iron Co., now an official in the Republic Iron Co., is here from Chicago and asked the Amalgamated men to meet with him that he might address them on the conditions that prevent the mills of this company from resuming.

The men unanimously decided that not a man accept the invitation, but wait for the adjustment of differences through their officers.

The Idea.

From Harper's Bazar.

Miss Summit: What a lot of old china Miss Spindle has! And she says it was handed down in her family.

Miss Palisade: Then it is just as I expected.

"What is?"

"That her ancestors never kept servants."

NEGRO FOOTPAD FIGHTS OFFICERS

He Snatched Miss Eberly's Pocketbook.

CLUBBED INTO SUBMISSION.

ANOTHR WOMAN'S PURSE FOUND IN HIS POCKET.

Robert Higgins, Identified by Miss Eberle, Shows Himself a Desperate Man by His Resistance to Arrest by Two Officers.

Loaded with the plunder of two victims, Robert Higgins, a negro who had just robbed Miss Minie Eberly of 3932 North Nineteenth street, was clubbed into submission and taken to the Chestnut street station Friday night.

The negro wrenched Miss Eberly's pocket book from her hands while she was standing on the curb waiting for a car on the northwest corner of Fourth street and Washington avenue. She screamed with fright and Officer Dugan chased the negro eastward along Locust street firing four shots into the air as he ran.

The thief did not stop until he ran into the arms of Officers McGuire and Curran at Main and Locust streets. He tore from their grasp and dealt them heavy blows, but several hard raps on the head knocked all the fight out of him.

He was taken to the Dispensary where his scalp was dressed. At the Chestnut street station Miss Eberly identified him, but there was no necessity for that much trouble as her pocket book containing 35 cents and a small photograph was found in his pockets.

A further search brought to light another woman's pocket book containing $2.32 some visiting cards and some letters addressed to Hugo Buckley 3435 Manchester avenue. A bill of $5 denomination was also found in another pocket. Higgins, if such be his name, gave his address as 3033 Hickory street.

WILL TAKE IT TO COURT

Disputants in Public Schools Water Rates Case Cannot Agree Among Themselves.

A "friendly" lawsuit will result from the disagreement between the board of education and the water rates department over the charges made for the use of city water in school buildings. Attorney R. E. Rombauer, the board's legal adviser, holds that the ordinance only requires the payment of monthly water taxes at the rate of 9 cents for each pupil, and that no other charges are admissible. Assessor and Collector of Water Rates Hemmelmann insists on the payment of extra sums for the use of water in boilers and for other purposes than those of hydrants. These charges have been paid in the past, and Mr. Hemelmann holds that they are just. As the board's attorney is as positive that the charges should not be paid, it has been agreed to settle the question by the filing of a suit. Mr. Hemmelman is now out of the city and the litigation will be commenced on his return.

Prescription No. 2351 by Eimer & Amend will not cure all complaints, but it will cure rheumatism.

HOWARD WENT FOR A PARDON.

Testimony of Dr. Phillips at the Trial of the Goebel Conspirators.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 18.—Dr. W. F. Phillips, county school superintendent of Clay County, testified this morning in the Howard trial that Howard had told him that he had gone to Frankfort to get a pardon from Taylor, but he was too late for the shooting.

Lieut. John Richets, an officer in the Barbourville militia, stated that Youtsey stated that Jim Howard was not the man he saw running at the back of the state house after Goebel was shot and that Youtsey had told him the day before that Goebel was to be shot.

MAYOR JONES ASKS AID FOR HIS STRICKEN CITY.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 15.—Gov. Sayers last night received the following official report from Mayor Jones of Galveston as to conditions there:

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 14.

Hon. Joseph D. Sayers, Governor:

After the fullest possible investigation here we feel justified in saying to you, and through you, to the American people, that no such disaster has ever overtaken any community or section in the history of our country.

The loss of life is appalling and can never be accurately determined. It is estimated at 5000 to 8000 people.

There is not a home in Galveston that has not been injured, while thousands have been destroyed.

The property loss represents accumulations of 60 years and more millions than can be safely stated. Under these conditions, with 10,000 people homeless and destitute, with the entire population under a stress and strain difficult to realize, we appeal directly in the hour of our great emergency to the sympathy and aid of mankind. R. B. HAWLEY,
Member Congress Galveston District.

ALTON POLITICS ON TRIAL

Democratic Complaints of a Bad Count Will Be Heard in the Edwardsville Convention.

The politicians of Alton will go before another county convention with a contest.

This time it is the Democrats. They held a primary election Friday to select delegates for the county convention at Edwardsville next Tuesday. The Hope wing carried two of the precincts in the city and will contest the count in the third.

Their opponents carried the first precinct by 11 votes. The Hope people insist that they did not get an honest count here and will make a contest at Edwardsville. The anti-Hope people are supposed to be strong with the county at large, and if their delegation from the first precinct is seated they may yet control the situation.

GORED TO DEATH BY MAD BULL

Charles Schaefer Killed Near Alton.

AGED AND WEALTHY FARMER.

BODY FOUND IN FIELD BY HIS SON.

The Bull Was Still Standing Over His Mangled Victim When the Son Discovered That His Father Had Been Killed.

A powerful bull gored to death and frightfully mutilated Charles Schaefer, a wealthy farmer of Madison County, Ill., just before noon Saturday morning.

No one witnessed the killing. Mr. Schaefer was 63 years of age and not engaged in active work about his farm. He went out during theforenoon, and when he did not return to the house shortly before the dinner hour his son, Benjamin Schaefer, aged 27, went in search of the old gentleman.

The young man searched around much of the farm before he finally found his father. When he did find him the discovery was frightful. The old gentleman had gone out into an open field in which there was pastured a vicious bull.

When the son climbed the pasture fence his elevated position gave him an unobstructed view of the field. He saw the bull acting strangely. Its head was down, and it waslowing angrily and pawing upon the ground something which the young man did not recognize, until second view, as the mutilated body of his father.

The bull was driven away, and young Schaefer carried his father's bleeding body to the house. The old gentleman was dead, but his body was warm, and the tragedy was evidently not many minutes old when the son found his parent. The hoofs and horns of the bull had been equally employed in the attack. Both had frightful torn wounds. The old farmer, and but for the appearance of the son upon the scene the infuriated animal would hardly have desisted in the attack, even when his victim had been killed.

Schaefer was one of the oldest German farmers of the county. His farm is six miles northeast of Alton.

CORONER WILL INVESTIGATE

Death Follows Illness During Which There Was No Medical Attendance.

The sudden death of Mrs. Emma Kennell, 60 years old, of 2733 Chouteau avenue, was reported to Coroner Lloyd Saturday morning by Dr. J. T. Pirtle of 2714 Chouteau avenue, who stated that the case was one in which Christian Science had been the only treatment employed.

Inquiry at the house on Chouteau avenue where the dead woman lived with her sister, Mrs. Minnie Trice, brought out the fact that a cancer of two years' standing had caused death, and that Mrs. Kennell had during the entire time and to her last moments of consciousness forbidden the summoning of a physician to attend her. Members of the family say that a woman named Hinton had visited her daily for several weeks past and the two had spent much time together in prayer and religious exercise.

George Guibor, a relative, who lives at the same house, summoned Dr. Pirtle Friday night in spite of the dying woman's protests, and the physician found that blood poisoning had resulted from the cancer and that death was inevitable. Mrs. Kennell died at 5 o'clock Saturday morning.

BRIDGE PROMISED IN SIX DAYS

Railroads Conjointly Set Large Force to Work to Put Up Temporary Structure.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—So much progress has been made toward the rehabilitation of Galveston and so harmoniously are the various forces working that Gen. McKibben, who was ordered here with his staff to assist the authorities as soon as the storm disaster befell Galveston, has decided that his presence is no longer necessary and he has made arrangements to leave for Houston.

After having largely assisted in the restoration of local confidence the withdrawal of Gen. McKibben is taken to mean that little is to be done here, but care for the distressed, until normal business conditions have been resumed.

In this connection the information was made public through the local representatives of the federal authorities that the War Department will undertake as soon as possible the restoration of its property at this point.

Press dispatches quoting Eastern financiers on the future of Galveston were read with much interest. The idea, however, that the status of the city will be changed, finds no local adherents. The various railroads entering here have determined to assist the citizens of Galveston to the full extent of their ability in rebuilding the city.

Col. L. J. Polk of the Santa Fe has received a very encouraging and enthusiastic message from the headquarters of his road, declaring confidence in Galveston, urging the business community to proceed at once with the work of reconstruction and promising every help in their power. As a result of the receipt of the message Col. Polk said:

"The railroad interests have decided to combine their forces in order to rebuild as quickly as possible a bridge from Virginia Point to Galveston; the large number of men will go to work in the morning with this end in view. You may say to the country that in six days a bridge will have been built and trains running over it. I have had a consultation with the wharf interests and they have promised us that they will be prepared to handle ingoing and outgoing shipments by the time the bridge is finished.

"The bridge we shall build will be of substantial but temporary character. We shall subsequently replace it with a more enduring structure.

"There is no reason why Galveston ought not commercially to resume normal conditions in 10 days."

CORPSES DOT COUNTRY SIDE

Pestilence Is Feared in Vicinity of Hitchcock, Where the Dead Lie Unburied.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 15.—The coast country is beginning to be heard from. A bulletin from Hitchcock says:

Country districts are strewn with corpses. The prairies around Hitchcock are dotted with the bodies of the dead. Scores are unburied as the bodies are too badly decomposed to handle and the water too deep to admit of burial.

A pestilence is feared from the decomposing animal matter lying everywhere. Disinfecting material is badly needed.

The bodies of Edward Jaidnick and one of his children have been found, but the bodies of his wife and one child are still missing. He was one of the leading insurance officials in Texas, and well known in insurance circles throughout the United States.

MRS. LOONEY ASKS DAMAGES

Sues Seckner Contracting Company for the Death of Patrolman Looney by Electric Shock.

Whether or not the Seckner Contracting Co. was to blame for the crossing of its wires and those of the Fourth district circuit of the fire alarm and police telegraph system will be determined in a proceeding begun by Mrs. Mary P. Looney Saturday to recover $5000 from the company for the death of her husband, Patrolman John P. Looney, Sept. 3, from the wires charged by the crossing.

The principal charge in Mrs. Looney's petition is that the company used a wire that has been disapproved by the Board of Public Improvements on account of the character of its insulation. Her attorneys are Johnson, Houts, Marlott and Hawes. It is claimed by the petitioner that the company is responsible for the crossing of the wires, because its wire, being imperfectly insulated and having an unusually high voltage, burned away not only its own insulation but that of the police wire, thereby making a complete circuit, which it is said, shocked Patrolman Looney to death when he attempted to call up his captain by the police telephone at Twelfth and Morgan streets. The plaintiff asks to be awarded $5000.

BRIDWELL GETS NEW TRIAL

Judge Clark Grants the Motion of the Police Officer Convicted of Oppression in Office.

Policeman John J. Bridwell, found guilty by Judge Clark and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 on a charge of oppression in office, was granted a new trial by the same judge in the Court of Criminal Correction Saturday.

Bridwell was found guilty in July on an information returned by the grandjury, in which he was charged with taking Mrs. Emma Buckley of 5861 South Broadway into custody without proper cause during the strike.

Capt. Sam Boyd of the same district was acquitted by a special jury on the same charge. Then the motion for a new trial in the Bridwell case was entered.

Judge Clark, after allowing the motion for a new trial, said:

"The case was plain. Boyd was acquitted by a jury of 12 men, and that showed that they did not think as I had in the Bridwell case. The charge of oppression in office was hardly sustained, but that of making a false arrest was. The penalty in the oppression in office charge disfranchises a man, and it is too severe in this case."

MRS. HIGGINS ASKS FOR SUPPORT

Thinks Her Husband, Who, She Says Deserted Her, Should Pay Her $100 a Month.

In a petition filed in the Circuit Court Saturday, Mrs. Mary Higgins asks the court to award her $100 a month for her support from her husband, Thomas J. Higgins.

The plaintiff claims the defendant abandoned her Sept. 23, 1898, and has since failed to provide for her. She also avers that, since he left her, she has had the custody of George, their 14-year-old son, and has educated and maintained him.

She avers that the defendant has considerable real estate and earns $150 a month, while she has no property except the house in which she resides and which is heavily mortgaged. She thinks $100 a month a reasonable sum for him to pay her.

PROSECUTE THEIR BARTENDER

Eddie Clifford and Robert Ricksen Accuse Him of Stealing $2 From the Cash Drawer.

Eddie Clifford and Robert Ricksen, proprietors of the Palms, 3221 Olive street, swore out a warrant Saturday charging Joseph Canty, their bartender, with petit larceny.

Clifford and Ricksen say Canty took the money from the cash drawer and left the saloon. Before going the proprietor say Canty placed a note in the money drawer saying he had taken $2. Canty is under arrest.

POLICE GATHERING FUNDS

New York Force Acting Under Chief Devery's Orders Collecting Funds for Galveston.

The money will be hurried to the proper source for distribution as speedily as possible.

MURPHY SURRENDERED.

Prisoner Turned Over to the Illinois Authorities.

James E. Murphy will be turned over to the Illinois authorities by Circuit Attorney Theodore Eggers.

Murphy was one of the men who was arrested on the train coming into St. Louis on the charge of having played a confidence game on Frank Schrum of Indianapolis. Two other men arrested at the same time have been turned over to the Illinois authorities, but Murphy was surrendered by his bondsman, James H. Cronin, necessitating a surrender to the Illinois people by the circuit attorney.

TELEGRAPH LINES RESTORED.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—Telegraph and railroad lines are being rapidly restored. This morning the postal Telegraph Cable Co. have four wires working into the city, and within 48 hours will have their system almost completely re-established to the basis existing before the storm.

The Western Union is in even better shape, but with both companies the stringing of wires has been but temporary, time being the all-important consideration at present.

Acting in conjunction with the other roads, the Santa Fe is bending every energy toward the building of a temporary structure across the bay for the running of their trains into Galveston and to the wharves, which will probably be ready for the loading of vessels before the first train arrives. The wharves themselves withstood the buffeting of the awful storm to a remarkable degree and as soon as the piles of debris are removed the ships will be able to load and unload with but little inconvenience.

THE GHOST OF A LEGISLATIVE CRIME.

The Globe-Democrat says in an editorial paragraph:

Missouri's biggest corporation is that of the street railways of St. Louis. They were consolidated last year by a Democratic Legislature, and a Democratic Governor signed the law. Mr. Bryan can point a moral and adorn a tale by referring to this remarable example in his trust discourse tonight.

This is a fair shot. The Post-Dispatch, not as a party organ, but as an independent newspaper defending the interests of the people, stood alone in opposition to the legislative wrong which created the street railway trust in St. Louis. It warned Gov. Stephens and the Democratic legislators that the Democratic party would suffer for that piece of corrupt folly. Now they are discovering that the ghost of their legislative crime will not down.

But the Globe-Democrat tells only half the story. More Republicans voted for the street railway consolidation bill than Democrats. Why doesn't the Globe-Democrat condemn the Republican legislators for their part in the work? Why didn't it warn them of the consequences of such legislation?

Both Democrats and Republicans shared in the creation of the biggest trust in Missouri. The party organs were silent, while the Post-Dispatch defended the people and warned the parties. Now the organs are merely trying to make political capital out of a wrong committed by both parties.

Of all the states, Pennsylvania has been pampered by the government and enriched through unjust laws. If her miners cannot now get wages enough to keep body and soul together, what is the reason?

ENGAGEMENT RING PROBLEM.

A reader of the Post-Dispatch suggests that those who have had experience with engagement rings relate it, for the benefit of the millions who are still destined to give or receive such rings. The writer of this suggestion says: "Let the men tell how they have been treated in this ring matter."

Perhaps the most interesting experience would be that of the young women. Of course where an engagement ring is simply superseded or reinforced by a wedding ring, "in due course," as a lawyer would say, there is but little romance. The interesting experience is that where an engagement for any reason is broken off. What, then, is the proper course in regard to the ring?

No manly young fellow will, under such circumstances, ask the lady to give back the ring. On the other hand, no self-respecting girl will keep an engagement ring after the engagement is broken off. What becomes of all the rings in broken engagements?

Might it not be a good plan to save young persons from this quandary, in case love's path proves too difficult, by suggesting the custom of donating cast-off engagement rings to charitable uses? The eleemosynary institutions might soon be fairly well supported from this source.

What mothers could have been more faithful to their children than were the good sisters of an orphan asylum in Galveston, who tied themselves to their little ones, resolving to save them or die with them?

THE NEW GALVESTON

Some fearful souls, terrified by the awful calamity which befell Galveston, are advising against the rebuilding of that city on its present site.

Commenting on this, Mr. Willis H. Moore, Chief of the United States Weather Bureau, observes that the logic would compel the abandonment of every coast city. There is a remote possibility that at some time a hurricane may visit and destroy them. "Galveston should take heart," writes Mr. Moore, "as the chances are that not once in a thousand years could she be so terribly stricken, and high, solid foundations would doubtless make her impregnable to loss of life by all future storms."

This is a sane, common sense view. Probably wisdom will suggest protective measures and better building plans, but Galveston, which grew to greatness on her present site, may look forward without fear to even greater achievements in the future.

In the darkened districts of St. Louis the situation of Galveston, with its light plant wrecked, is easily comprehended.

ROBERTS AND KRUGER.

Lord Roberts' proclamation, calling the attention of the Boers to the hopelessness of their cause and regretting the necessity of the severe measures he will be called upon to use to put an end to resistance, is dignified and, from his point of view, humane.

As Lord Roberts seems to be clothed with full power to deal with the Boer problem, he could at one step do what would probably end the war, namely, offer clemency to Kruger and the Boer leaders in such a way as to conserve their dignity and that of Great Britain.

Such a step would win the approval of the civilized world. It would also go far towards removing that feeling of bitterness which exists in South Africa and which will cause the rule of Great Britain there to be precarious for years to come.

Kruger and his generals deserve this treatment. They have fought a good fight. They have acted as civilized combatants are expected to act. Their patriotism has shone out as a bright, steady fire. To exhibit mercy towards them at this juncture would be the wisest step England could take.

East St. Louis ought to be content with an increase of 95 per cent in her population. She will soon reach the 40,000 mark at which she supposed she had arrived.

BRINGING OUT HEROISM.

Great calamities like that at Galveston always bring out the latent heroism in human nature.

The pathetic story in Friday's Post-Dispatch of the brave sisters of the orphan asylum and their little charges will wring tears from the hardest hearts.

Tying the children together in groups of eight or nine and to each group linking a sister, they waite for the end. When the rush of waters came the asylum was swept away and 99 of these heroic women and their little ones went to death.

In every man and woman there is the seed of goodness, which is greatness, awaiting circumstances to make it sprout and grow and bear fruit. Most of us go through life colorless, humdrum and, perhaps, to outward seeming, useless, but there is that within which ennobles and dignifies the humblest. When the occasion comes it will emerge and prove that human nature is essentially true and pure and brave.

Galveston capitalists and newspapers are pluckily announcing that the ruined city will be rebuilt, but no one has thus far insisted that a strong sea wall and substantial levees ought to be among the first erections. The report of the local military authorities shows that the fortifications and gun emplacements built of concrete on piling withstood the tidal wave and are in good condition. This should suggest that a sea wall will be immeasurably beneficial to Galveston. During the tempest the tide rose to a height of 11 feet above the normal. A sea wall 12 feet above high tide would have kept the water out of the city.

MEETING THE QUICK RELIEF PROBLEM.

How best to meet the demand for immediate relief for the homeless and destitute Galveston people has been the practical question confronting those engaged in relief work.

On Monday, when the extent of the calamity became known, there was but one thing to do and that was to place money in the hands of the authorities to purchase immediate necessaries. For this purpose the Post-Dispatch authorized Gov. Sayers to draw at sight for $500 as its own contribution and invited others to follow its example.

But subsequently urgent appeals were sent for prepared materials, food and all kinds of household supplies, which could be handed out at once to the sufferers. Chairman Steele of the Galveston relief committee, on Wednesday morning, sent out a moving dispatch, describing the awful destitution and saying, "Send us by special train disinfectants, prepared food, hay, grain, everything that can be used immediately for man and beast. Call on railroads for special service and wire us credit for all money possible."

There could be but one answer to an appeal of this kind. The Post-Dispatch immediately began to equip quick relief cars in addition to the two relief trains and two steamships prepared for in New York, by the World and Post-Dispatch. These cars were for immediate wants. Car No. 1, supplied free of charge by the M., K. & T. Railway, was sent to Houston Wednesday evening, the same day on which the appeal was received.

The donations of merchants were generous, but the short time limit made it impossible to fill the car with donated material, so that, in order that all the car space supplied free of charge might be utilized to the best advantage, the Post-Dispatch applied some of the money contributed for the sufferers in purchasing carefully selected prepared foods, which could be dealt out at once as rations. This material was purchased at wholesale cost prices and was transported free of charge so that the money was expended to the greatest benefit of the sufferers. The Post-Dispatch felt sure that contributors would approve the application of contributions in a way that would secure to the sufferers the greatest amount of relief at the least cost and in the shortest time.

The Merchants' Exchange, the produce commission merchants and others in and out of St. Louis followed the same plan of using contributions of money to purchase ready material to be shipped free of charge.

Thus the relief committee in Texas were supplied with relief in two forms, ready material for immediate use and money with which to purchase necessaries as required—a combination which seemed to meet all the requirements of relief.

The Post-Dispatch relief car No. 2 is donated by the Wells-Fargo Express Co. It is now being filled with donations of foods, drugs, tents and household supplies. There is room for more donations of the same kind and any surplus will be forwarded free of charge. Donations should be delivered today.

It is gratifying to the Post-Dispatch and all who have shared in the good work to receive praise from such a high authority as Miss Clara Barton, president of the Red Cross Society, who said: "The Post-Dispatch and the World started exactly right. What is needed at the scene of this horror is the means to remedy it. Material even more than money is valuable now."

Much has been done, but there remains much more to be done. Let it be done quickly while the need is most pressing.

Registration at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners in the City Hall will not close until Oct. 6. The precinct registration will take place Oct. 9, 13 and 16. Voters should keep these dates in mind. Opportunities to register are ample. There will be no excuse for failure to qualify for voting in November.

The charge that Kruger is prolonging the Boer war because of promises made by Webster Davis is quite as ridiculous as the chatter about Aguinaldo keeping up the Philippine war in the hope that McKinley will be defeated at the polls in November.

Chief Willis H. Moore of the United States Weather Bureau says Galveston should be rebuilt with deep stone foundations and heavy stone interiors at least 10 feet above mean sea level. This is advice that cannot be ignored with impunity.

The Mayors of St. Petersburg, London and Paris are to dine together, and most of the mayors of the French cities will be present at the banquet in Paris. There will not be a single moonlight Mayor to liven things up.

The $1 added to the price of every ton of hard coal will not put a morsel into the dinner pail of the miner, and it is likely to interfere with numerous square meals in communities dependent upon anthracite.

From the wonderful zinc and lead district of Joplin ores are already being shipped for display in the World's Fair of 1903. Probably no Missourian will be behind time in preparing for the great exposition.

The pluck-me store of the Pennsylvania mining regions would possibly astonish an Asiatic missionary coming to the United States to convert us to one of the Eastern religions.

Gives Advice Which Applies to Women Who Become Infatuated Against Their Best Interests.

Copyright, 1900, by the Press Publishing Co.

HERE is a letter from a wife whom some good, worthy man is supporting by the sweat of his brow, poor soul! She says:

'Dear Lady: Will you help me in my trouble, as I have not one friend in the world, nor one to whom I can speak one word of my mind.

"I have a husband and two children. I am only 42 years old. And I have a love romance in my life. I did not marry the man I loved, but I married one whom I thought looked like him, but did not love him in the right way. I am fifteen years married.

"I never saw any one I could love in that time up to about a year ago.

"I was taken very sick and called in a doctor. I fell in love with him at first sight, deeply. He looked so much like the young man I once loved and still love.

"The doctor is handsome, of Spanish descent. He married a millionaire's daughter against her parent's consent.

"He soon read my secret—that I loved him. And when I paid him my bill he gave it back to me, pretending he made a mistake in the change.

"I wrote him a letter and explained how I came to love him. He did not answer it or refer to it when we met again.

"I called at his office a few days ago, and he told me to go out of his office, as he did not want anything more to do with me, and he opened the door. I went without speaking one word, and my heart has been nearly broken ever since.

"I do not look my age, but I told him the truth about it. I am called a very handsome woman and do not look more than a girl. The doctor has a wife and two babies.

"If I should get sick again should I ask the doctor to treat me or not?"

For the very young girl who goes astray I can feel pity in my heart, but for the wife and mother who is looking up love romances to regale herself with when she has long since crossed the summit and is going down the hill of life I can feel only wonderment, and indeed I might use even a stronger word than that.

In the first place, my sister woman, you should not have given yourself up to day dreaming over an old lover after you had become the wife of another man.

It would have been noble in you to give the rearing of your children and providing for your tired husband's comfort your most earnest thoughts. It was ignoble of you to search outside of your family for some one to love and some one to love you.

As to the handsome doctor—well, it seems to be the curse of that grand profession that these doctors cannot attend some women in the performance of their duty without the patient falling desperately in love with them.

In your case the doctor, who was wealthy, gave you back your money because of his conviction that you needed it more than he did.

In his case it proved to be a mistaken kindness to be so generous. You misinterpreted his motives.

The letter you wrote him telling of your mad infatuation was an impertinence.

He did right in treating the matter with contemptuous silence. Your calling at his office when you had no legitimate business there justified the sternest rebukes from him.

He has told you plainly that he wishes no further transactions with you. There is no mistaking his meaning. You are to understand that he does not desire to attend to you professionally in future.

Should you fall ill again, put some matter-of-fact, elderly doctor, and be sure to always have your good husband present when he is with you, that your husband's presence may prove a check to your wayward emotions.

Be a good wife and a true one and a good mother.

Let no foolish notion of romance get the better of your good sense.

Noisy Street Cars.

Our Claim to the Philippines.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Unless "destiny" or some other mysterious power has given us superior rights in the Philippines our title is no better than that of Spain before the cession. The $20,000,000 which the treaty of peace provided should be paid to Spain was simply the consideration for a quit-claim deed from Spain to the United States. If there was any flaw in Spain's title the same flaw exists in ours. It is claimed by our Republican friends that the war against the Filipinos should be carried on to the extent of extermination if need be until the authority of the United States is recognized as supreme throughout the islands. Every argument in favor of such a war could be urged with equal justice to support the cause of the Spaniards against the Filipinos and also the Spaniards against the Cubans. We are fighting to perfect exactly the same title for which the Spaniards fought. How can our war against Spain be justified if we simply put ourselves in her place and seek to carry out the same purposes? JOHN A. HOLDER.

Advice to Mr. Bryan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

While Mr. Bryan undoubtedly means well, it does seem a pity that he is not dissuaded by his political friends from making some of the moves attributed to him by papers issued from temples of truth—a sufficient guarantee that facts are given. For instance, this recent mistake of getting up strikes in the anthracite regions, where McKinley's "full-dinner pail" is so plentiful and prosperity reigns, according to the statistics of miners' wages.

Then his keeping the Filipinos in the field all this time instead of ordering them all to retire to their free and happy homes. It is to be hoped he will profit by the friendly warnings of the papers mentioned and change his tactics before it is too late.

St. Louis. CELTIC-AMERICAN.

THE DAY'S LOVE STORY

THE HEART OF LYDIA

IT was a hot afternoon.

Randall Clark, in cool gray serge, canvas shoes and straw hat, passed his fellow pedestrians with a jaunty stride. He didn't carry an umbrella and he didn't carry his coat. He had experienced some rough service under a more ardent sun and in contrast to the people sweltering about him he permitted no thermometer reading to increase his personal warmth.

That he was in love admitted of little question. The question was should he continue to bask in the singeing flame of Miss Emily Tabor's eyes.

He told himself that Emily Tabor was a beautiful girl, refined and highly intelligent, with charming tastes and many accomplishments. But did she have a heart, and was it quick in sympathy and faithful in love? She was so cold, so statuesque, so perfect.

Randall doubted if he could be happy with her.

He took a coin from his pocket and held it between thumb and forefinger as he strolled along.

"Heads, I go; tails, I stay," he said. He caught it on his open palm.

"Heads," he murmured, and slipped it back into his pocket.

He would stop at Jack Manning's and say he had decided to go on that trip among the Florida lakes.

Then he stopped. There was a baby carriage standing close to the fence. It was the face of a baby that stopped him. The hot sun was shining directly upon it. It was red and the eyelids were half closed, with a strip of white eyeball showing beneath. Randall quickly turned the carriage into the shade. He saw that something must be done immediately. He glanced along the row of houses. What should he do? Go to one of the big front doors and ask for assistance, or hustle the child to the nearest drug store?

A light step sounded behind him. He turned quickly. It was Emily Tabor. Emily Tabor in all her snowy summer fineries. She did not smile at his ridiculous position.

"What is it, Mr. Clark?" she asked.

"Somebody's left this baby to broil," he answered, "and I'm afraid it's ill."

"The poor little dear." She gave the child a hurried glance. "Bring it right to my aunt's house, Mr. Clark. I'll hurry ahead and open the door."

Randall followed her. Emily met him at the doorway with outstretched arms. He put the child in them.

"Come this way," she said, and led him to the library. "The maids are out, and so is auntie. But I've got a piece of ice here and some wet cloths." She laid the baby on the couch and knelt beside it. "Break up the ice," she said. She put the ice to the child's head and pressed wet cloths to its face and wrists.

"Wouldn't it be well to run for a doctor?" asked Randall.

"No," she answered; "I want you here. I think I'm quite competent to handle the case. Pull down the shade a little," she commanded. "And now take off my hat, please."

There was a short period of silence. Then the stillness was broken by a querulous cry.

"The dear is coming around nicely," said the girl. "What a pretty baby it is!"

"Isn't it a dear?" murmured the girl, with her face bent close to the child's.

"Is there anything I can do?" asked Randall.

"Look at that pillow," she answered.

He scanned it closely.

"The letters are 'L. R.,' I think," he said. They are a little obscure. If they are not 'L. R.' they are 'S. B.,' or perhaps 'Y. P.'"

The girl paused a moment.

"How stupid!" she cried. "It's Lydia Robbins' little boy, of course. He's the image of Lydia."

"Iddy, Iddy," cooed the babe.

"Please go to the telephone—In the hall, Mr. Clark," said the girl, "and call up Mrs. Robbins—Mrs. Coleman Robbins. Tell her that Jamie is here. But don't alarm her."

"I'm afraid I shall do it clumsily," said Randall.

"I seem to have disturbed her dreadfully," he said, "and I'm sure she doesn't believe a word I say. Can you speak to her, please?"

"Why, yes," said the girl as she proceeded to the 'phone. "There, put the receiver to my ear, please. Is this you, Lydia? It's Emily Tabor. I'm at Aunt Gresham's. Yes, Jamie is here and he's all right. He was picked up on the street and brought in here. Deserted? Yes, yes. Listen." She held the baby close to the 'phone. "Mamma," she murmured softly. "Mamma," cooed the babe. "Come over and get your little man as soon as you please. Good-by."

Randall hung up the receiver.

"I think I'd better go," he said.

"That's true heroic modesty," she said. "You are afraid to face the gratitude of Lydia Robbins." Her voice grew grave. "She'll never know how much she has to be grateful for," she added.

"To you," said Randall with equal gravity.

"This sounds like mutual admiration," laughed the girl again. "Besides, auntie would never forgive me if I didn't invite you to dinner. She wants to meet you. Will you stay—that is, if you have no other engagement?"

"I have no other engagement," Randall briskly asserted as he settled himself in an easy chair.

"I understood you were to go with Jack Manning on his long trip through the Florida interior," she softly said.

"Never had any such idea," said Randall Clark.

FROZEN DELICACIES.

Frozen Caramel Cream.

Put in a double boiler one cup milk, one cup cream, three-quarter cup sugar and the yolks of three eggs. Beat well, then place over the fire, and stir till nearly boiling. When cold, add this slowly to three beaten whites, while stirring constantly. Put three tablespoonfuls sugar over the fire; stir till it turns yellow; add a little water and boil to a syrup. When cold, add it to the cream and freeze. In place of caramel, one teaspoonful vanilla extract may be used.

Coffee Mousse.

Put four tablespoonfuls finely ground coffee in a small double boiler and add half a pint of boiling water; cover and let stand in a warm place 15 minutes; then strain. Return the strained coffee to the double boiler; add the yolks of six eggs and six tablespoonfuls sugar; stir over the fire till nearly boiling or till it coats the spoon, then add one teaspoonful vanilla, and when cold, add one pint of whipped cream. Fill this in a mold; lay over a sheet of paper; then put on a tight-fitting cover and pack the mold in rock salt and ice; let freeze four hours, then serve.

Spongada aux Peches.

Pare and cut into pieces some ripe peaches; press them through a sieve, and take for one pint of peach pulp one pint sugar syrup, two teaspoonfuls vanilla extract, one and a half gills white of egg, not beaten, and 10 bitter almonds pounded to a paste, with a little water. Mix all well together and strain twice through a sieve; pour this into a freezer, cover and turn for five minutes; take off the cover, cut the frozen parts loose from the sides of the freezer; cover and turn again; repeat the operation of cutting from the sides every five minutes. As soon as the mixture begins to thicken, remove the paddle of the freezer, work the mixture up and down with a large spoon and press it toward the sides and bottom of freezer. As soon as the contents of the freezer have increased to double their size, add two tablespoonfuls maraschino, and serve in glasses.

EGGS PREPARED AU GRATIN.—Knead well together one tablespoonful of breadcrumbs, two ounces of butter, three chopped anchovies, a pinch of parsley, the yolks of three raw eggs, a generous pinch of salt, and dash of white pepper and some grated nutmeg. Place this mixture in a baking dish with an ounce of butter at the bottom. Place over a slow fire for two minutes, then break over it six eggs; cook for five minutes in a hot oven and serve at once.

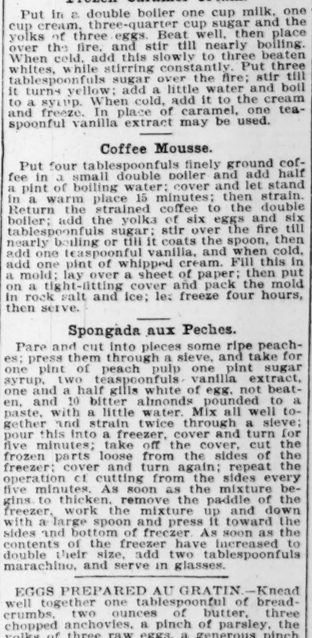

FACTS ABOUT OYSTERS.

Every year in the United States there are opened and eaten 3,000,000 bushels of oysters. Much of this enormous crop comes from the Chesapeake. More than twice the amount of oysters produced by all foreign lands put together comes from the Chesapeake alone, according to Everybody's. In the last century its output of these mollusks has been about 400,000,000 bushels, selling for $250,000,000. The industry is the support of 225,000 persons outside of Baltimore city, which is the greatest oyster market in the world.

It has been reckoned by the United States fish commission that the available oyster-growing area in the Chesapeake is about 1000 square miles and that with proper cultivation this area would be worth $100 an acre yearly. Already these wonderful oyster beds begin to show the results of reckless overfishing and approaching exhaustion. There are three branches to the oyster business—raw shucking, steaming and the sale of the molluscs in the shell. The business of shucking raw oysters employs 32,000 persons in Baltimore, who get 20 cents per "cup" of nine pints for the meats of the oysters they open. In the same city are prepared nine-tenths of the world's product of canned oysters.

The oyster is as fixed and sedentary as the potato and its cultivation is just as easy. In Europe its propagation has been reduced to a scientific basis, but in this country only a beginning has been made. An oyster is ready for market in about five years. The bivalves have so much to contend with that perhaps only one in 2,000,000 lives to grow up and be eaten by human beings. This is just as well, for the descendants of one pair of oysters, if all survived and grew to maturity, would in five generations compose a bulk more than eight times the size of the earth.

One thousand bushels of shucked oysters leave about 1100 bushels of shells, which accumulate in great heaps about the shucking houses. The oyster shells landed on the shores of Maryland during the last 90 years have been reckoned at 12,000,000 tons—a quantity twice sufficient to overload and sink every sailing vessel, steam vessel, barge and canal boat in America. The weight is more than the combined tonnage of all the steam vessels in the world. Until recently the shucking firms were obliged to pay money to get rid of the shells, but now they are able to dispose of them for half a cent to a cent and a half a bushel. Immense quantities of them being utilized in the manufacture of coal gas, as material for roads, in the making of special grades of iron, in the construction of railway beds and for chicken food.

ALPHABETICALLY CONSIDERED.

When first upon the light we gaze
The father murmurs, full of glee,
Yet in a sort of joyous daze:
"O. I. C.!"

We grow to manhood's proud estate,
And when the world demands its due,
We often mark upon the slate:
"I. O. U."

Thus, often with the world at war,
We see our cares unceasing grow,
And there is much of trouble for
U. S. & Co.

And yet, whatever griefs may be,
They do not shake our pride a bit,
And we're through life decidedly
I-T, IT.

And more than ever, fat or thin,
Demure or sprightly, grave or gay,
We all are glad we're living in
U. S. A.

STILL IN THE RACE.

Behind hand in his studies? Yea!
He very seldom knew them.
Still, we'll be not behind hand, pray!
How could the boy pursue them?

The Plunder of China.

From the Washington Post.

The argument that we, too, must seize and ravage in order to protect our trade interests and speed the Christian propaganda, is the argument of robbers masquerading in the robes of piety. Consider for a moment how we should treat an invasion in the name of civilization and for the purpose of changing our institutions and our form of government. Are we ready to do that which we would resist to the last drop of our blood were the outrage leveled at ourselves? We are not at war with China. We have solemnly declared that we demand only the rescue of our citizens. What right, then, have we to keep armed forces on Chinese soil? Are we honest or dishonest—do our humane protestations bind us, or has the lust of blood and spoilation got into our veins and made us hypocrites and pirates like the others?

STORIES OF CHILDREN.

"Grandma," said 4-year-old Harry one warm afternoon, "don't you think you would be cooler if you took the windows out of your spectacles?"

"I think papa is dreadful," sobbed little 3-year-old Margie, who had just been chastised by her father. "Was he the only man you could get, mamma?"

"Now Willie," asked the teacher of a small pupil, "what are the principal uses of the bones in the human body?"

"They are used principally to hang the meat on," replied the youthful student.

"Mamma," queried 4-year-old Freddie, "does sugar ever cure any kind of disease?"

"Not that I know of, dear," replied his mother, "but why do you ask?"

"Because," answered the little fellow, "if it does I'd like to catch it."

NO TOBACCO.

"I thought you said you didn't use tobacco?" thundered the merchant prince.

"Nor do I," replied the new clerk. "What was that you just threw away?" "That? Oh, that was only a cigarette." Later in life, it is gratifying to know, this same young clerk shone in diplomatic circles.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

GRAND CARD OF RACES

KINLOCH OFFERS BEST PROGRAM OF ITS PRESENT MEETING.

To an epicure of racing, the program Saturday is the most inviting of the present Kinloch Park meeting.

The particular feature is the highclass of all the fields.

The half-holiday contingent will be served with a delightful entree in the way of the hurdle race.

The "timber toppers" created great enthusiasm with the regulars last Wednesday, and no doubt they will be prime favorites with the Saturday racegoers.

The curtain raiser of the day's sport is a three-quarter of a mile purse for the juveniles.

Minion made a favorable impression with the regulars Friday. In a desperate drive Jaunett beat her a nose. Saturday she should win from Donna Bell and Kate Freeman. The latter likes a route better than the other two, but she does not seem to class with them. But don't overlook her.

Ten very fair performers will sport silk in the second contest.

On Friday old El Ghor finally did break away from the maiden class. It took two years to do it. Though he won rather easily, he does not figure to defeat Gilbert and Orlandine, and they should finish in that order, with El Ghor at their heels.

The third race is one of the best handicaps that have been programmed for many days. To forecast the probable result is a very difficult proposition. Fred Cook has his grand horse John A. Moris, in the race. He was beaten his last out by Bessie Macklin in very fast time. He carried 115 pounds to the filly's 96. Moris ran a great race, and though he carries two pounds more than he did his last out, he figures to defeat Lasso and Miss Mae Day. This contest should be a battle royal.

Following the handicap come the jumpers. John S. Bratton's Tonto won easily his last out from Francis Pope. The weights were 157 each. Saturday Tonto carries seventeen pounds more, while Capt. Rice's mare has five pounds off. This difference in weights makes Francis Pope the best. Gomez has been schooled a great deal since Wednesday, and he should "peep."

The fifth race is another handicap, at one mile and seventy yards. Last Tuesday Go-To-Bed, with 111 pounds up, defeated Tom Kiley's consistent mare, Ida Ledford, by a nose. She carried 107 pounds. When the barrier was released she was off very badly and ran a magnificent race. Go-To-Bed carries three pounds more, while Ida Ledford has one pound off. Considering these conditions, Ida Ledford should be able to withstand Go-To-Bed's cyclone speed in the stretch and capture the purse. Joe Doughty ran a fair race his last out and he should finish in the money.

In the concluding event seven very racey individuals will journey one mile and an eighth. If you are so unfortunate to be loser when it comes to the race, the Post-Dispatch racing statistician extends condolence, as the last contest of the day is a tough proposition to figure. It is necessary, however, to select some one, and Fox Bard will be the pick to win, with Henry of Franstamar and Sprung to run second and third.

Gentlemen's Driving Club.

The Gentlemen's Driving Club program for Saturday at Forest Park will consist of four events beginning at 2:30 o'clock. The special feature will be a class for trotters and pacers to runabouts, half-mile heats, owner to drive. The entries are:

First race, classified exhibition trot—Grattan ch m., John Seim; Monnutta, b. m., Colman Stock Farm; Myrtle Sprague, ch. m., Owen Shannon.

Second race, classified trot—King Mack, b. g. L. Spelbrink; Wilkesgold, b. h., Colman Stock Farm; Angie, ch. m., James E. Kenney.

Third race, special for trotters and pacers to run-abouts, owner to drive—Howell Cobb, ch. g., T. A. Conrad; Boxer, b. g., L. Spelbrink; Lady Helen, blk. m., John P. Martin; Billy Holmes, br. h., A. H. Smith.

Fourth race, classified exhibition pace—Billy Steinman, blk. g., W. J. Flanagan; Dollie McGregor, b. m., W. R. Eversole; Drextell Jr., ch. h., Dr. H. J. Dionsyius.

High School Tennis Matches.

The candidates for positions on the tennis team that is to represent the High School in the inter-scholastic tennis tournament met on the courts of the Amateur Athletic Association Friday afternoon. The five who will represent the school in the tourney will be selected after trial matches between the seven best players of the school. The results of Friday's playing follow:

Bronaugh beat Barnes, 6—2; Nelson beat Robinson, 6—0; Skinner beat Frankenthal, 6—4; Goerner beat King, 6—2; Rutter beat Parker, 9—7; Newhouse beat Farrar, 10—8; Krause beat Farrar, 6—2.

Ball Game for Flood Sufferers.

The L. M. Rumsey Manufacturing Co. and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat baseball teams will play Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the campus at Christian Brothers' College, for the benefit of the flood sufferers of Texas.

The object is a worthy one and the game will doubtless be well attended. The clubs are two of the fastest amateur aggregations in the city and as they have met on two previous occasions, each team having won one game, it is unnecessary to state that Sunday's contest will be well worth the nominal price of admission.

Sour Odors from Perspiration.

For ages this sour odor arising from arm-pits, dress shields and underclothing has made all women uncomfortable, not only the one so afflicted but her associates in business or pleasure must have their nostrils offended by the odor. Bathing, instead of stopping this odor, only seems to make it worse. Perfume can not cover it up, as the odor of perspiration is stronger and more penetrating than the finest perfume ever made, and perfume mixed with this odor is intensely sickening. The medical fraternity have tried time and again to relieve this odor without success, and it is only recently, after years of research that a remedy has been found. Spiro, a soft, white antiseptic powder, without any odor itself, removes and kills at once all traces of odor from perspiration on any part of the person, clothing, dress shields or shoes. This odorless white powder is guaranteed to do what water, the finest soaps, scented talcum powder and richest flavored perfumes have failed to do. It will destroy perspiration odor on person or clothing in all cases in any clime. Real purity and cleanliness cannot exist without Spiro. When applied direct to the body or feet for heat blisters, chafing or scalded parts it cures them at once, and for prickly heat it is recommended by all physicians. Sold by all druggists at 25 cents per box and money refunded in every instance if, after trying, Spiro does not do all we claim for it. Free sample will be sent upon request. Address Spiro Co., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

GOING TO BALTIMORE

McGRAW DECLARES HE WILL PLAY THERE NEXT SEASON.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—John McGraw has declared himself and openly asserts that Baltimore will have a club in a new league next season and that he expects to lead the re-colored Orioles. Speaking last night McGraw said:

"I told Frank Robison before I signed a St. Louis contract that I expected to have a club in Baltimore next season and I did not sign until he had scratched out the reserve clause. I am not aware that the Protective Association is preparing to fight the magnates. In fact, I believe the players mean no fight, but, as our constitution declares, we desire only protection of our rights. I am not opposed to the National League, but I do expect the new league will have clubs in Baltimore and in Washington next season, possibly in other eastern cities, and I expect to get the Baltimore Club."

McGraw refused to say whether the promoters of the new league were in collusion with the American League magnates, but he laughed when some one asked if the Quinn-Anson crowd was behind the movement.

The movement toward the resuscitation of the American Association is attracting lots of comments here in the East, but the scribes do not seem to know much of it except at Baltimore. Frank Hough, Joe Vila, George Giddin and Jake Morse—every one a lover of the game—believes the revival is absolutely necessary for the good of the game and all four call attention to the mismanagement of the present officials. It is strange that all the old time scribes are indignant over the way the League magnates have dragged down the game.

WITH THE BALL PLAYERS.

Joe Quinn Leaves the Cincinnati Club and Will Return Home.

"Old Reliable" Joe Quinn was, on Friday, given his 10 days' notice of unconditional release by Manager Allen of the Cincinnati Reds. This announcement will come as a complete surprise to the local fans, as they had been under the impression that Quinn was playing bangup ball for the Porktown aggregation. The return of Charley Irwin to third base is said to have been the reason for Quinn's release. Quinn will probably pass up the national pastime for all time and give all his attention to the conducting of his livery business in St. Louis. His 10 days will be up on Sept. 23.

The Cincinnati Reds pulled the Champion Brooklyns down a peg on Friday by treating them to a coat of kalsomine for nine innings. "Bill" Phillips was the twirler who gave the Superbas the setback, and Joe Quinn greatly aided him by connecting safely with the sphere his four trips to the plate.

The players almost lived up to their resolution Monday not to do any more kicking on the field. Kelley in Brooklyn had one growl to make at the umpire, but it was short. Davis of the New Yorks felt called upon twice to address remarks to Gaffney when the spectators thought he might better have used up all his talk on the players, and McGraw kicked twice and stalked across the field the personification of an offended Napoleon.

But with McGraw it is different. When the moon ceases to shine, when the Hudson river flows toward Albany, when seats in all palace cars are free to the common people as well as to the politicians, when prize fights are honest, when tobacco chewers cease expectorating over the floors of public buildings and circus peanuts are roasted on the same day that they are sold, then McGraw will cease from kicking.

He cannot help it any more than the pensive mule can help it. As the hippopotamus returns to his pet mud hole, and as the lost house cat strolls home after an absence of three or four days, so McGraw must get back to the kicking game after he has kept silent for two innings.

Even Robinson, the portly young man with the ruby cheeks, who looks after McGraw when McGraw isn't looking after him, shook his head sadly, as much as to say, "Oh, it's of no use," as the stocky third baseman turned upon the umpire with a few words of conversation not laid down in the rules.—New York Telegram.

"I did not get up to the union meeting but it must have been amusing," says a New York scribe. "I am told that 'Bull' Dahlen, Mike Donlin, and Jack O'Connor made orations protesting against rowdyism on the ball field and 'Nig' Cuppy argued in favoring of hurrying up the games. Even so the boys are showing more brains than their owners ever have exhibited. They know what they want and are going right out after it.

"The agreement, signed by 136 of the best ballplayers in the land, not to sign any contract except the one drawn up by the attorney for the association probably will cause some uneasiness among the magnates and certainly it will cause a rumpus at the next League meeting when Hughey Jennings, Big Chief Zimmer and Harry Taylor submit a contract, sans 'farming' clause, sans 'reserve' clause and plus several other things to the magnates asking their approval. Can you imagine Col. Rogers then turning on full pressure and spouting most of the eloquence? It will be funny enough to make Jack Crooks cease to look sorowful."

When will the agony end? The poor Reds seem to be going from bad to worse. Their fielding yesterday was miserable. In the first game at Brooklyn Alhen's men made almost as many errors as hits. It is true that the team is in hard luck, but even at that such fielding disgusts loyal suporters of the club and there is no excuse for it. There is little local interest in the team now, and all fans are waiting and anxious to see what will be done in the way of strengthening for the next season. The Reds are now in next to last place, and it is possible that New York may yet pass them. The club certainly has been a bitter disappointment this year to Cincinnati rooters.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Breitenstein has been in correspondence with a prominent St. Louis real estate agent with a view of securing a large building in which to establish a retail wine and whisky business, with the ultimate object of getting into the wholesale liquor business. "It is quite likely," said Breit, "that my business ventures will make it impossible for me to play baseball after this season. I cannot expect to remain in baseball much longer, and this business, if properly attended to, will run me for years, so that for my own good I will give up baseball if I find that one interfers with the other."

Manager Hanlon of the Brooklyn team is not particularly worried over the threats of several members of his team that they will be out of baseball the coming season and that it would be wise for him to do a little scouting for men to take their places. The same cry was set up by several members of the Brooklyn team at the close of last season, yet almost every man of them came into line before the opening of the season and has been doing his best for the team ever since. The exceptions were Pitchers Hughes and McJames, the former having received equally good inducements to remain on the Pacific coast and McJames having retired in order to practice medicine.

Hickman is this year's marvel, according to the New York Journal. "He has a record now of 26 consecutive games without failing to make one or more safe hits. He made four corkers yesterday. There is little doubt of his leading the League in home runs at the close of the season. He has made the longest hits of the year on the Polo grounds, in Pittsburg and in Boston."

Pittsburg has but three batters who are hitting above .300. And yet the team wins. The fact that the Pirates' pitchers are working so well and are receiving gilt-edged support is responsible for the good showing of the team.

CORBETT IN ENGLAND

LAUGHS AT WIFE'S CHARGES REGARDING FAKE FIGHTS.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 15.—James J. Corbett, Mlle. Corneille, her mother, and Corbett's manager, George Considine, arrived at Queenstown on board the Campania last evening.

The ex-champion was big and heavy and he looked as if the voyage had agreed with him.

A Post-Dispatch correspondent found him and Considine on the promenade deck. They said they had enjoyed the journey immensely.

"Do you know Mrs. Corbett is reported to have followed you?" asked the correspondent," and that she has threatened to shoot Mlle. Corneille because she is on the same ship with you?"

"Oh, that's ridiculous," said Corbett, whose face expressed the utmost surprise.

"I am sorry for Miss Corneille. I never met her until this ship was sailing. I am traveling all alone under the name of George Francis. I occupy a stateroom entirely separate from Miss Corneille's. She rooms with her mother. When I was introduced to her on starting I was told her name was Mrs. Martin. Considine is traveling as Mr. Martin. He has a stateroom to himself."

"Why did you register under assumed names?" the Post-Dispatch correspondent asked.

"Only to avoid being interviewed in New York and in order to keep our departure quiet," Corbett answered.

"Do you know that Mrs. Corbett has begun an action for divorce?"

"No, I don't believe that's possible," said Corbett, confidently.

"Don't you see, it can't be possible, if she's coming over here. Here is what may have happened. Probably she was irritated by hearing certain reports and therefore acted hastily and made wild statements, for which she is sorry by this time."

"Mrs. McCoy has sued her husband for divorce," said the Post-Dispatch correspondent.

"Well, that's news, indeed," Corbett exclaimed with a laugh.

"Your wife and Mrs. McCoy have issued formal statements that your fight with Kid McCoy was a fake and that he laid down," said the correspondent.

"O, that's rich," moaned Corbett. "What do you think of that for a lie?"

Considine laughed, too.

"And your wife says that your fight with 'Tom Sharkey' was a fake, too," said the correspondent.

"Another lie," said Corbett, by this time omitting the laugh and beginning to grow angry. "I never faked a fight in my life. These stories about fakes are started by soreheads in New York."

"Your wife says you took $200,000 with you and that you have run away to dodge the disgrace of being in New York now," said the correspondent.

"I am dodging nothing," replied Corbett. "As for the money I've got with me, that's my business and nobody else's."

"How long will you remain in Europe?"

"I don't know. Considine and I have had this trip planned for some time. I'll do some work over here if I can find any one to put on the gloves with me, maybe Mitchell will do it. Nothing has been arranged. When I go back to New York I will fight Jeffries for the championship. That will be my last battle."

George Considine corroborated everything Corbett said: "We're here on a pleasure tour," he said "and I think Jim deserves it after training for a year and a half and fighting two hard battles. If any one over here wants to fight, Jim will accommodate him."

Mlle. Corneille could not be found.

"My daughter is indisposed," said her mother. "She is in our stateroom. She has come to Europe on professional business only and any story that there is any relationship between her and Corbett is a pure invention. My daughter is traveling in my stateroom with me and is under my constant care and watchfulness."

WITH THE BOXERS.

Tom O'Rourke and Tom Sharkey at Last Part Company.

The partnership agreement between Tom Sharkey and Tom O'Rourke, which has proved so profitable in recent years, has at last been dissolved.

For months, it is said, O'Rourke and Sharkey have had numerous kicks. When the story was circulated a few months ago that Sharkey had left O'Rourke and would be managed by Jack Dougherty, O'Rourke boiled up and declared the sailor would fight under his management or not at all, as his contract with him would prevent him from fighting in New York state under any other manager. That was the starting of the trouble between O'Rourke and Sharkey, and since that time they have had frequent quarrels, which no doubt have been responsible for O'Rourke's refusing to manage the "Ship Ahoy" fighter another year.

O'Rourke said: "I intend to act as manager for only two fighters hereafter, and they are Joe Walcott and George Dixon."

"Do you mean that you really will not manage Sharkey hereafter?"

"Yes, I mean it. I will let him do for himself from this time on, and then he can see if he can manage his affairs better than I did," replied O'Rourke.

"How about Bob Armstrong, whom you recently said you had secured for three years?"

"I won't manage him, either, for, as I said before, I will only be the manager of Walcott and Dixon. Walcott can lick all of those big fellows, and I will bet money he can. He can make more money than either Sharkey or Armstrong, and he isn't troublesome. I have made up my mind to have him and Dixon under my management."

"When does your contract with Sharkey expire?"

"On Sept. 17," retorted O'Rourke, "and you can say for me that it won't be renewed, either."

Sharkey intends to open a saloon in East Fourteenth street, opposite Tammany Hall, New York, and if he is prosperous he will probably retire from the ring forever.

Kid McFadden's manager has posted a forfeit for him to meet Oscar Gardner. If they meet it will be at 115 pounds.

Dan Creedon is going to fight Billy Peyton, Washington's famous colored boxer. They will go 20 rounds at Baltimore.

Peter Maher gave Jim Jeffords, the Californian, an awful whaling on Friday night. They met at Philadelphia, and the fight lasted only two rounds.

Marionettes vs. Mascoutah, Ill.

The Marionettes will go to Mascoutah, Ill., Sunday to play the second game of a series of three with the team of that town. The first game between these two teams resulted in a victory for the Mascoutahs by a score of 5 to 3. The Marionettes' regular players, who will make the trip, are: Stockho, Minch, Kerwin, Gorman, Gutman, Byrnes, Deaton, Hoffman, Maull. The Marionettes are open for all games out of town, also in town, Flora, Lebanon, Ill., Lebanon, Mo., Olney, Moberly or De Soto preferred. Address H. B. Deaton, 2710 Leffingwell avenue.

THE TURF CONGRESS

KINLOCH PARK TO BECOME A MEMBER OF THAT BODY.

At the meeting of the Turf Congress at Cincinnati on Oct. 19 several changes in the membership of that organization will take place.

The Kinloch Park Club will be admitted to membership and Oakley and Lexington will in all probability be dropped.

President Joseph D. Lucas of the Kinloch Park Jockey Club has sent in his application for membership, and it will be acted on favorably.

At the last meeting of the congress the membership of the clubs which had not given meetings during the year 1899 was extended by resolution to Sept. 1, 1900. Therefore clubs which failed to give a meeting during the present year will be dropped, and will not be entitled to participate in the coming meeting. The following clubs have not given meetings this year: Oakley, Lexington and Ingleside.

The Cincinnati Jockey Club (Oakley) has not given a meeting for several years, and will be among those which will forfeit its membership. Nashville would have also lost its representation in the congress had it not given a meeting this year. The old Kentucky Association of Lexington has not raced for more than two years, and will meet the same fate as Oakley and Ingleside. The latter track could not give a meeting last year on account of the law interfering, but will lose out just the same.

For years the Kentucky Association track was one of the most influential racing organizations in the West, but the track was bought up by Charles W. Green of St. Louis, and it is only a question of time until the famous old racing plant will be a thing of the past.

With the above-mentioned tracks off the membership list there will be but 14 tracks in the Turf Congress. Oakland, Roby, Lakeside and the Crescent City Jockey Club are not members of the Turf Congress, but race under the rules of that body and recognize all its rulings in regard to fraud, etc.

The tracks that compose the Turf Congress now and will have representatives at the coming meeting are:

New Louisville Jockey Club of Louisville, Kentucky.
Latonia Jockey Club of Covington, Ky.
St. Louis Jockey Club of St. Louis, Mo.
Kinloch Park Jockey Club, St. Louis.
Tennessee Breeders' Association of Nashville, Tenn.
New Memphis Jockey Club of Memphis, Tenn.
Arkansas Jockey Club of Little Rock, Ark.
New Louisiana Jockey Club of New Orleans, La.
Queen City Jockey Club of Newport, Ky.
Washington Park Club of Chicago, Ill.
Chicago Jockey Club of Chicago, Ill.
Highland Park Club of Detroit, Mich.
Harlem Jockey Club of Chicago, Ill.
The Western Turf Association of South San Francisco, Cal.

The statement that W. F. Schulte is not an official of the Turf Congress was partly incorrect. Mr. Schulte is still president of the congress, as no action could be taken on his resignation until the annual meeting next week, and he has for that reason remained at the head of the organization and will do so until the congress takes action on next Wednesday.

Quarterstretch Gossip.

It is a long while since such a field has started in a race at St. Louis as that which will face the flag in the fourth event at Kinloch Park this Saturday afternoon. That field includes Miss Mae Day, who held all the horses at the Fair Grounds safe this summer; John A. Morris, who, while at Chicago, was pronounced the best horse in training in the West; Lasso, Louis Lemp's grand-looking filly; Grantor, W. J. Baker, Sweet Caporal and Nobleman. Out of such a field a grand race is sure to come.

The third week of the Kinloch Park meeting opens Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Kinder still thinks Hilee a better horse than The Light and has money to bet that way.

Fred Cook was not at all elated over Small Jack's victory. "There was nothing behind him" was all Fred had to say after that race.

All the books at Kinloch have done well, and Fred Cook, the Hoffmans and Cole Ullman are good big winners.

Cricket at Forest Park.

The final cricket game between the President and Vice-President elevens will be played at Forest Park Saturday afternoon. The first game of the series resulted in a draw and the Vice-President's team was victorious in the second. The final game promises to be hotly contested. The game will commence promptly at 2:30. The teams:

The golf tournament for the Western Golfer Rookwood Cup will be held at the Algonquin Links, in Webster, Saturday afternoon. Play will start at 2:30 sharp. The individual handicaps follow:

A. W. Conner, 15, vs. George S. McGrew, 10.

PLAYERS WANT A CONFERENCE.

The Attorney of the Protective Association Writes to Magnates.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Harry L. Taylor as attorney for the "Protective Association of Professional Baseball Players," has written the presidents of the three leagues, asking for a conference. He will propose several important changes in the contracts between clubs and players, and discuss other grievances. President Ebbett of the Brooklyn Club is the first of the league men to advocate the meeting of the players' attorney.

"I believe in treating the players fairly," said he. "For they are the life of the game. If they have grievances they should be settled."

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The stock market was broader and more active in the opening dealings than for a long time past. Fractional declines were general, and were widest in the grangers and some of the specialties.

The market steadied somewhat after the opening, when People's Gas hardened ½. Renewed offerings of coalers and steel stocks turned the list sharply downward again. A large number of stocks lost nearly a point, and Erie first preferred declined 2, Tennessee Coal 1⅝ and Lackawanna and Iowa Central preferred 1½ each.

The large decrease in surplus reserves shown by the bank statement brought a renewed drive by the bearsand large selling orders were uncovered on the decline. Losses reached between 2 and 3 points in a number of the industrials, Metropolitan, General Electric, Northwestern, B. O. preferred and Erie first preferred. In the grangers, a few of the trunk lines and a number of other railoads, the declines reached 1½ per cent. The list of losses reaching to a point was a long one. Bear traders covered in some stocks, but the pressure was continued in other points, making the closing active and weak and generally at the lowest.

New York Market Summary.

To P. J. McMorrow.

Commission house traders and London selling. Chicago sold Gas. Reported compromise contradicted. Hard coalers weak on strike. B. & O. weak; pool selling suspected. Believed pool in Missouri Pacific unloading. Lower Wall street selling Sugar.

Street and Norton sold 10,000 shares stock all around room, particularly C., B. & Q. and Atchison, supposed to be for Bell-Field crowd. Street and Norton operate largely for Jakey Field and Louis Wormser at times. Wormser short time ago was best buyer in market.

Vice-President Henderson of the Reading says latest advices from mining regions say all of our miners are working today. Unless there is a general or sympathetic strike we don't apprehend serious trouble. On good authority it is said a few Reading men may be affected at Shamokin, where the Pennsylvania also has some union men, but this would mean scarcely 10 per cent of Reading's productive capacity.

Wall Street Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Interest in the stock market has continued at a very low ebb, as shown by the small effect of the Galveston disaster, the coal miners' strike, the Vermont election and all other events of the week. The news of New York subscriptions to a new German loan and the probability involved of a further gold exports, the growth of the interior movement of currency, the cessation of offerings of government bonds for refunding and redemption, thus cutting off the subtreasury's contributions to the money market, and the stop to bank note expansion have aroused renewed apprehension of an autumn squeeze in money rates, which has contributed to the dullness.

COTTON AGAIN ADVANCED.

Strong Cables and a Good Demand Helps the Staple.

By Wire to Bennett Wasserman & Co.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A final spurt in the cotton future market just before the close today brought prices almost up to the best figures of the week in the nearby positions. A higher market at Liverpool, together with heavy foreign buying of the staple, strong spot markets, and a continuance of further bad weather reports, proved an irresistibly bullish combination, and futures mounted steadily higher in the last hour of business, until they were 18@19 points higher for the near months at the close, while the later options showed 6@8 net advance from last night's final quotations.

Opening prices were 25@30 points higher for the early months, the demand from the short interest and a strong close at Liverpool helping prices upward. During the first hour there was good purchasing from many quarters and the initial advance was well maintained, small declines being the rule toward the end of this period.

Port receipts for the day were estimated at probably 13,000 bales, against 15,250 bales last week and 27,835 bales last year.

Sentiment showed quite a change toward the bullish side during the morning, cables from Liverpool stating that quite a decided change in the trend of feeling there had also been witnessed.

There were more additions to the buying crowd in the last hour, but the sellers also became more numerous and for a while the market was extremely irregular, fluctuating up and down within a very wide range. Wall street was a heavy purchaser during the morning, though several reports were to the effect that a number of large operators have taken occasion to do some profit taking on the late bulge.

Liverpool opened lower, futures being very easy during the beginning of the session there. September future was 6 points lower, while the others showed from 3@4 points decline. During the session there was good purchasing, especially by Manchester, and the market closed materially stronger, at a net gain of 3 points for September-October, while the other months were about 1 point higher. Spots were firm at 1-32d gain.

Southern houses were quite large buyers in the final part of the session. Indeed, the entire purchasing of the staple looked to be for investment and short account, and as the market became more bare of offerings prices strengthened and the October and January positions were suddenly lifted 10@12 points. The previous losses in many of the futures were soon entirely wiped out and further gains added. Selling was fair on the upturn.

At the close the near months were 18@19 points bettered, while the later futures showed net gains from Friday night's close of 6@8 points. Spots were quite steady during the day, being ⅛c up.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Wheat started the day strong and higher under the influence of higher Liverpool cables in the face of the weakness here yesterday, and because of rains in the Northwest. Oct. opened ⅝@¾c higher at 76@76⅛c, and sold to 76¼@76⅜c. Local receipts were 404 cars, 8 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 388 cars, against 649 last week and 1007 a year ago. WHEAT FUTURES FIRM

IMPROVED ALL AROUND DEMAND HELPS THE PRICE.

CLEARANCES WERE HEAVY.

After Early Steadiness the Market Advanced Rapidly on Large Shipments and Strong Cables.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 15.

The grain bear this morning expected to see Liverpool several fractions down in sympathy with the big slump in this side's markets yesterday, but he was doomed to disappointment. Liverpool opened ⅛d up for wheat and ¼@⅜d advanced for corn.

Following the lead of foreign markets the local future range advanced rapidly at the opening, and although shading off slightly later in the day, held its own quite well.

St. Louis—Dec. wheat opened at 75¾c and Dec. corn at 34@34⅛c bid.

Chicago—Sept. wheat opened at 76c and Oct. at 76@76⅛c. Sept. corn at 40¾c and Oct. at 39¼c.

New York—Sept. wheat, 80⅝c, and Dec., 82⅞@83c. May corn, 41⅝c, and Dec., 42c.

The weather—Fair and cooler tonight and Sunday. The barometer is highest over the Northwest Territory and lowest over the extreme Upper Mississippi Valley. Secondary areas of low pressure are present over Oklahoma and Georgia.

Rains were general in the Missouri central and upper Mississippi valleys, Northwest Territory, southeast and Atlantic states from Virginia south. The following heavy rainfalls (in inches) was reported: Atlanta, 2.90; Montgomery, 2.06; Calgary, 1.24; Swift Current, 1.12; Moorhead, 1.10; Qui Appelle, 1.08; Bismarck, 1.04.

Liverpool cotton opened 2@8 points down, but by 1 o'clock was 2 down to 4 up.

This advance in the leading foreign market was felt by the New York market. Traders again began to talk "early frost," and prices advanced rapidly.

Jan. opened 27 points up, March 26, Sept. 15, Oct. 27, Nov. 27 and Dec. 24 points above the previous close.

The market after this big advance grew weaker, shading off about 10 points under early liquidation.

Under short covering, an improved scalping demand and some good buying by legitimate traders prices advanced at first by big spurts, but later more slowly.

After advancing ½@⅝c the market grew quiet, and all kinds of trading fell off.

It was reported from Chicago that the demand for lake tonnage is very strong, and several big charters have been made.

Oct. wheat was bid 74¼c, and Dec. opened at 75⅝c. After the initial sale Dec. sold at 75⅞c, was bid 75⅞@76c, and then 76c, and later sold at 76c and 76⅛c.

Receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth today were 368 cars, as compared with 1007 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis today were 161,452 bu, compared with 38,755 bu same date last year. Of these 6334 sacks and 139 cars were local, compared with 2558 sacks and 44 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at primary points today were 1,074,496 bu, as compared with 1,259,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 381,657 bu, compared with 554,000 bu same date last year.

Sept. corn was bid 39¼c, Oct. 37c and Dec. 34@34⅛c at the opening.

It was late in the session before the first two futures had any more bids, but Dec. later was offered at 34c and then at 33⅞@34c.

The absence of sales shows the market to have been very dull, but it was of about the usual Saturday character.

Receipts of corn at St. Louis today were 34,400 bu, compared with 123,890 bu same date last year. Of these 17 cars were local, compared with 276 sacks and 107 cars same date last year.

Receipts of corn at primary points today were 525,052, as compared with 1,014,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 888,276 bu, compared with 829,000 bu same date last year.

Dec. oats were offered at 22½c, but no sales were made in the early market.

Little attention was paid this cereal by the pit, and changes in the range were rare.

Receipts of oats at St. Louis today were 25,500 bu, compared with 49,285 bu same date last year. Of these 60 sacks and 21 cars were local, compared with 17 sacks and 36 cars same date last year.

Towards the close of the market wheat grew much stronger on heavy clearances and a revived demand.

The Dec. future advanced to 76½c, and Oct. finally opened at 74⅝c.

Dec. corn opened at 34c, and then sold at 34⅛c, and then at 34c.

Clearances of wheat were 359,431 bu; corn, 483,901 bu, and flour, 111,009 bbls.

THE FURNISS FAMILY IS LOST

Galveston Hotel in Which They Were Stopping Is Entirely Swept Away.

Vice-President C. G. Warner, of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, has received a telegram from General Superintendent Trice, of the International & Great Northern railroad at Palestine, Tex., stating that there was little hope that Anthony Furniss, who was assistant auditor of the Missouri Pacific Coal Co., or his daughters, Madeline, Grace and Edith, would ever be seen alive again.

The telegram explains that Mr. Culver, an employe of the road at Galveston, who is a relative of Furniss, had been to Galveston and found that the Beach Hotel, where Furniss and his daughters had been stopping, had been completely swept away.

Ernest Furniss, who left for Galveston Tuesday as soon as he learned of the real situation in the stricken city, has not been heard from since Thursday evening. At that time he telegraphed from Houston to Mr. Dubois, who has charge of Mr. Furniss' desk in room 407 Union Station. He said everything looked very black and asked for additional money as he would need to fight his way through to Galveston.

The money was sent by Mr. Dubois, but he has not heard from Furniss since. Furniss is 18 years of age and was a clerk at Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. The family lived at Maplewood.

County Clerk Helmering received a letter Wednesday from Charles M. Gambling of Earlington, Ky., in which the writer wants to know if he is heir to a fortune in St. Louis County. He said that his uncle, Benjamin E. Franklin, had enlisted in the Mexican war from Hopkins County, Ky., and on its close returned to his native state, but shortly afterward he emigrated to Missouri and settled on bounty land. Some 12 years ago the sheriff of St. Louis County wrote to the sheriff at Earlington, informing him that both Franklin and his son were dead, and that his estate was at the disposal of the legal heirs. Gamblin claims to be one of these, and says he only heard of his uncle's death a few days ago. County Clerk Henry C. Helmering looked up the records, but could not find the estate to which Gamblin referred.

THEIR LAST CHANCE

MANY ST. LOUIS VOTERS REGISTERED AT ELEVENTH HOUR.

LISTS CLOSED SATURDAY NOON

And 250 Voters Were Just in When the Police Closed the Doors.

Applicants for registration crowded the office of the Board of Election Commissioners Saturday morning in greater numbers than on any previous day since the enrollment of voters for the November election commenced.

The reason for the general anxiety to register immediately was the announcement, made two weeks ago, that those who did not register before Saturday noon and whose names were not on the primary books at their present residences would not be permitted to vote at the primaries of either party this fall.

At the noon hour the outside doors of the office were placed under a police guard to prevent the admission of any more persons, and those who were in the room at 12 were allowed to remain and register. Those who thus registered after the noon hour numbered about 250.

Much comment has been caused about the City Hall by the fact that registration was conducted at the office of the board between 7 and 9 o'clock Friday night. Secretary Hobiltzelle explained the matter Saturday by stating that a large number of men whose names had been suggested as judges and clerks came to the office Friday night to be examined, and that most of them, as well as some friends who accompanied them, were registered as an accommodation.

INNOCENTS PAY FOR HIS CRIMES

Frank Peyton Confesses a Safe Theft.

ROBERT L. SIMMONS SUFFERED.

SUSPICION DROVE HIM FROM CLARKSDALE, MISS.

Peyton's Confession at St. Louis Will Restore Simmons to His Mississippi Home If He Can Be Found.

Frank Peyton, who confessed to the murder of John Robson at Sioux City in 1890, made another confession Friday afternoon that removes a blot on the escutcheon of a proud Mississippi family and lifts a cloud from the life of an only son.

It may clear the anguish from a mother's heart—an anguish that has assailed her reason. It will prove the triumph of a fiancee's love, that has been true through all the bitterners of accusation against an innocent man.

But Robert L. Simmons, the man from whose name a stain has been removed, is yet to be found. He fled from his birthplace when accused with theft by his father's friend. He left heart-broken letters to his mother and sweetheart, in which he proclaimed his innocence and said that he would never return until his accuser acknowledged that he had done a cruel wrong.

The confession that has so strangely changed the lives of four persons from despair to joy was made in the office of Capt. Reynolds, at the Four Courts, in the presence of Attorneys D. A. Scott of Freyers Point and J. W. Cutrer of Clarksdale, Miss., representing J. L. Simmons, a wealthy townsman of Clarksdale, and parent of the young man who has been accused for more than two years of robbing the safe of his father's friend.

Peyton, the theatric cocaine fiend and burglar, has made an affidavit, now in the possession of the Mississippi lawyers, that he committed the robbery during February of 1898. The time agrees with that of the record. He drew for the lawyers an accurate diagram of the store, a large wholesale drug establishment owned by J. L. Simmons and in which stood the safe belonging to Dr. K. Stuart, a leading physician of Clarksdale. The attorneys told the Post-Dispatch that all the circumstances supported Peyton's claim.

He says in the confusion that he broke into the place by means of skeleton keys and got into the safe by knowledge of the combination, a secret he refused to reveal. He took $960 and destroyed valuable papers.

Directly after the robbery he states that he went north along the Mississippi river, robbing safes and houses in small towns and that he passed through Illinois, just across the river, and spent a large share of his ill-gotten gains in St. Louis.

Attorney Scott said to the Post-Dispatch Friday afternoon that Dr. Stuart accused young Simmons, who was the only person who knew the combination of the safes besides Stuart, so that a chain of circumstantial evidence was thrown around Simmons.

Mrs. Simmons has been nearly insane since the departure of her son, and the anguish of mind it has caused her was the incentive of her husband in trying to clear up the mystery. Dr. Stuart has always been ready to make reparation when the mystery should have been explained.

Letters and memoranda in Peyton's possession when he was arrested showed that he has been in Clarksdale, Miss. A letter from the authorities of that place, asking Chief Desmond to watch for evidence that would tend to implicate any criminal in the Clarksdale robbery is in the memoranda.

The next step to be taken by the family after the return of Attorney Scott and Cutrer will be a general advertisement in the press of the country to notify Robert Simmons that the unjust suspicion which drove him from home has been removed.

Meanwhile Peyton is on the way to Sioux City, where he will be tried for a murder for which another innocent man, the partner of Robson, narrowly averted hanging.

THE BRIDE

THE GROOM.

One week of boarding at the home of Mrs. Kate Ojemann at 1453 Warren avenue convinced F. A. Lorenz that he would never find a home any more to his liking or a wife any more desirable than his landlady, although she is 45 years old, and is the grandmother of two children, while he is but 25.

Mrs. Ojemann's son, William Mees, who is older than his new stepfather, was so much pleased at his mother's third matrimonial venture that he accompanied her and Lorenzo to the marriage license office.

Equal approval was given to the match by the mother of the groom, who lives in South St. Louis.

Lorenzo, who is a painter, served in Cuba during the Spanish war. He first became acquainted with his wife at a Fourth of July celebration near Venice, Ill.

BODY THROWN IN A GULLY.

PECULIARLY ATROCIOUS DEED OF A TENNESSEE FARMER

When Arrested Soon After He Was Calmly Eating His Supper and Appeared Unconcerned at the Charge—A Lynching Probable.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 15.—A murder, peculiar in its atrocity and in the horrible nature of its details, was committed near here yesterday and Doc Martin, a farmhand, who is the husband of the woman who was killed, is in jail charged with the crime.

Martin has lived in a cabin a short distance from this city with his family, which consisted of the wife and a 14-months-old child.

Neighbors who were passing a clump of bushes near the Martin cabin yesterday heard the wailing of a baby voice. A search discovered the presence on the ground nearby of the Martin baby. The child was entirely alone.

Surprised at this fact, the searchers looked further and found close by a lot of debris thrown into a gully. Sticking from under this was the edge of a woman's dress.

The brushwood and other debris was quickly thrown aside and there was disclosed to view the mangled remains of Mrs. Martin, the mother of the abandoned babe. Examination of the corpse showed that the head was nearly severed from the body, the neck vertebrae being crushed into bits.

A bloody fence rail nearby showed what had been the weapon used in the horrible murder, the head having been nearly beaten off with it.

Circumstances pointed to Martin and a posse was organized and went to his house, where he was found calmly eating his supper. He was arrested without any trouble, taking the charge against him in a nonchalant manner.

It is thought that he enticed his wife into the woods and killed her and then covered the body in the gully and abandoned the baby to die.

Excitement is very high in the neighborhood of the crime and a lynching may occur.

GOSSIP OF THE WEEK IN RELIGIOUS CIRCLES.

CANFERENCE PLANS MADE.

St. Louis Parish to Hold Its Street Fair Festival Next Week—Vacant Lot Filled With Attractions.

◆ Notices intended for this department should be in the Post-Dispatch office by noon Friday and be addressed to the Religious Editor to insure publication. Notices of Sunday services should be sent every week. They cannot be kept standing. ◆

A great event next week, commencing Monday, will be the street fair and festival of St. Leo's Roman Catholic parish. It will continue five days. A large vacant lot has been obtained, which will be laid out into streets with booths and shops containing articles of all kinds for sale. A midway will be provided which will contain entertainments of different kinds. On next Saturday, a queen of the carnival will be chosen, to be determined by the votes which have been cast during this week. Other attractive features will be presented. The proceeds will be devoted to the payment of the church debt.

The St. Louis M. E. conference will be held next week at St. John's M. E. Church. All arrangements have been made.

The new rectory of All Saints' Episcopal Church is nearly completed and the congregation is entitled to much credit for its energy and perseverance in accomplishing this work. Rev. Cassius M. C. Mason has been pastor for many years and is much beloved by the members of his church.

The Central Christian Advocate will be removed from St. Louis to Kansas City early in November. Rev. Jesse Bowman Young, for many years editor of the paper, is now in Colorado, but will return to this city before leaving for his new appointment to Walnut Hills Church, Cincinnati.

During the absence of Rev. Rhodes of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Rev. Charles Evans is filling his pulpit. Sunday evening Mr. Evans will preach at Oak Hill Presbyterian Church in place of the pastor, Rev. D. R. Leland.

Several changes have been made in the chapel of the Maryville convent which add to the beauty of that edifice. Two white marble statues, the gifts of friends, have been lately added to the many in the chapel.

The Congregational Sunday school federation will hold its first fall meeting next Monday evening at Pilgrim Congregational Church. "The Normal Department, or Systematical Bible Study and Teacher Training" will be the subject of the discussion, led by W. J. Semelroth. Officers will be elected at the October meeting to serve the ensuing year.

The Christian Church of Bloomington, Ill., extends a cordial invitation to ministers to attend the Christian convention Oct. 2, 3 and 4. Members of this church will undertake to furnish lodging and breakfast. They will also direct visitors to places where they can get dinner and supper at a small cost.

Rev. H. M. Campbell of Cote Brilliante Church has just returned home from a delightful visit to the Adirondacks.

Rev. E. D. Walker of Curby Memorial and Dr. Ferguson of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church have returned in time for Sunday services.

The oldest Methodist in South Africa, Mrs. Louisa Hendricks, is dead. She was 108 years old, and attended church until four days before her death.

The American Baptist Missionary Union has received word that the missionaries in western China are safe, and all missionaries of the union are now reported in places of safety.

The ladies of the First Christian Church met this week and adopted plans to unite into one large society the several societies of the church, believing that more successful church work, in this way, could be accomplished. Rev. F. O. Fannon, the pastor, has returned from his farm in Illinois. There will be a large Sunday school demonstration in this church on Oct. 2.

The Missouri state convention of the Christian Church will assemble at Moberly, Mo., Sept. 17 to 20, and undoubtedly call a very large attendance, many going from this city. A private car has been provided for those going from here and every comfort arranged for. The convention sermon will be preached by Rev. J. H. Garrison, editor of The Christian Evangelist, on "A Century's Triumph."

Rev. Lincoln McConnell, who recently resigned from the pastorate of the Clayton M. E. Church, will now devote himself exclusively to evangelistic work, with headquarters in Clayton. He will preach his last sermon to his congregation Sunday. His successor will be selected at the annual Methodist conference, which will meet in St. John's Church next week. It is thought that Rev. J. M. Stoltz, who has lately resigned his position with the St. Louis Christian Advocate, will be chosen to fill the vacancy.

The Union Mission tent meeting at Sixteenth and Chestnut streets will close Sunday evening. These meetings have been very largely attended, and the leaders this week have been Revs. Shepherd of California, and H. M. Turney, Jones and L. D. Abbott of St. Louis.

Rev. C. C. Stahmann, pastor of the Carondelet German M. E. Church, left the city this week to visit friends and to attend the annual conference of the German Methodist Church in Burlington, Ia.

Rev. Charles L. Kloss, pastor of the Webster Groves Congregational Church, has returned from his vacation and will occupy his pulpit Sunday.

Work on the new St. Theresa's Church building on North Grand avenue is progressing rapidly.

Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, pastor of the First Congregational Church, has returned from his vacation and will fill his pulpit Sunday morning and evening. It has been arranged to have the opening service very attractive and the musical festival, under the direction of Prof. Kroeger, will be especially pleasing.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Fountain Park Congregational Church will give a trolley ride Friday evening, Sept. 21.

The German Evangelical Lutheran Hospital and Orphans' Home Association will hold its annual picnic Sunday at Hoehn's Grove, opposite O'Fallon Park. There will be religious services both in the morning and afternoon and musical selections will be rendered by a large choir. A light luncheon will also be served.

The presbytery of St. Louis will hold its fall meeting at De Soto, Mo., beginning Tuesday evening. It is expected that the question of the revision of the confession of faith will be considered.

The meetings of the Newsboys' Club at Christ Church Cathedral have been postponed until November. It is thought that the cool weather will make the gymnasium more attractive to the boys.

Rev. James R. Winchester, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, has returned from his vacation.
